TWO FEDERAL TRAINS DYNAMITED BY VILLA

Rebel General Claims He Destroyed Train Bearing Many Soldiers—Two Armies Are Now Facing Each Other About Forty Miles From the Border—American Troops Are Strengthened Along Border—Huerta Still Defiant.

El Paso, Texas, Nov. 22.—Two Federal troop trains, en route from Chihuahua to Juarez, were blown up at Rancheria, 66 miles south of Juarez, this afternoon by dynamite mines placed along the railroad track by the rebels. This was the statement given out tonight by General Francisco Villa, who returned to Juarez from Rancheria where his troops are awaiting the Federals' approach. He said there were 1,500 Federals on the train destroyed and that the loss of life was enormous. The rebels assert that they captured one of the trains.

Villa returned to Juarez, fearing that Federals had sent a flanking column to Gaudaloupe, a border town east of Juarez, with the intention of sending his force to Juarez to attack the town.

The main body of General Francisco Villa's forces, which left Juarez early this morning to meet a Federal force, reported to number about six thousand men, advancing from Chihuahua to give battle to Villa's rebels, is reported tonight to be about 40 miles south of the border, but so far the impending battle between the two forces has not been started. At rebel headquarters in Juarez it was reported tonight that a few shots were exchanged between the advance guards of the two armies late this afternoon but both sides retired awaiting the bringing up of the main bodies of troops.

Soldiers Reinforced.

Washington, November 22.—Reinforcement of the American troops on the Mexican frontier was a development today relating to the Mexican problem, but this movement of troops was declared to be not at all alarming by official statement issued in explanation.

It was said at the War Department that one of two infantry regiments is to be ordered immediately to Fort Bliss near El Paso for the purpose of freeing one of the cavalry regiments now stationed at that fort for active duty along the international line in the execution of neutrality laws.

The choice will fall upon the 16th Infantry now at the Presidio, San Francisco, or the 20th Infantry, stationed at Fort Douglass, near Salt Lake City.

To serve as a garrison and defend the city of El Paso from any possible attack from the south of the line or to police the city in case of rioting, it was said that the infantry organization would be as servicable as the unmounted soldiers. On the other hand, not being as mobile, the infantry could scarcely fill the place of cavalry on the border.

The net result of the order is to increase by a full regiment the force of American troops available along the border. That their services may be needed to preserve order was asserted by members of the Texas Congressional delegation, and Secretary Garrison yielded to their appeals when he learned through press dispatches that the Federal leaders were again approaching Juarez, opposite El Paso and that the rebel general, Villa, who only recently had captured that town, had gone forth to get the Federals in battle. Reports of threatened disorders near Laredo, far to the east of El Paso, also reached the War Department, but General Bliss informed the Washington officials that he had dispatched another squadron of the Third Cavalry from Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, to reinforce the squadron already there.

Apprehension Allayed.

With the feeling of apprehension as to the safety of the oil tanks near Tuxpam allayed by pledges from rebel leaders that there would be violation of property rights there, navy officials were considerably relieved today. It was expected that one of the two British armored cruisers from Barbadoes would put in an appearance at Tampico almost immediately, and apparently it was felt safe to withdraw the battleship New Hampshire from Tuxpam, particularly as the battleship Louisiana remains in that neighborhood to look after foreign interests.

With the removal of all misunderstanding as to the reasons for the visit of the British ships to the oil coast, it was felt that the lines of protection against anarchy would be strengthened materially. There has been fear that an attempt might be made to fire the great oil tanks wherein are stored nearly fifteen million barrels of petroleum.

Unofficial advices from government agents in the sections of Mexico where Constitutionalists are operating, suggest a revival of a plan otseek recognition from the United States of a defacto government claiming jurisdiction by right of possession; the establishment of a capital and of an organized administration in all that part of Mexico north of a line drawn about due west from Tuxpam or Tampico.

So far, however, local Constitutionalist representatives here are unwilling to admit that General Carranza would be satisfied with anything less than a conquest of the whole of Mexico and the elimination of General Huerta.

Bryan Issues Statement.

Secretary Bryan issued this statement relative to Mexico City dispatches about the movement of British warships to Mexico:

"The statement published this morning to the effect that the State Department protested against the action of Great Britain in sending war vessels to Mexican waters is absolutely false. And in denying the statement I desire to add a condemnation of the publication of statements of that kind without taking time to inquire into their truth or falsity. A denial cannot reach all who read the statement nor can it prevent the discussion and editorial comments that are predicated on the false statement. Surely in international affairs there ought to be a patriotic desire to promote friendly relations, and these cannot be promoted by the reckless publication of false statements in regard to the acts of government officials."

Mexican Newspapers' Views.

Mexico City, November 23.—Newspapers under government domination today published long articles regarding the alleged intention of the United States to recognize Provisional President Huerta in the near future.

El Independente had a seven-column head line reading:

"Huerta will be recognized by the American government. The special envoy of President Wilson able to prove anarchy was reigning in the camp of the rebels of the North."

El Diaro similarly displayed an item stating that Secretary of State Bryan had already signed a communication recognizing Huerta.

El Independente relates that the failure of the conference between William Bayard Hal and Carranza was due to the conviction by President Wilson that the rebel chief could not give assurances for the safety of the lives and property of foreigners. The newspaper continues:

"President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan, after listening to the report of their envoy, decided that Provisional President Huerta was the only man capable of dominating the situation."

The chamber of Deputies completed the details of organization tonight, appointing House committees.

In the lobbies and at the National Palace the idea prevailed that President Huerta is fixed in his determination to permit the new Congress to continue, and is planning to carry out his programme for pacification of the country.

Fleeing From Mexico.

San Francisco, Nov. 22.—A party of French and other foreign residents of Santa Rosalia, Mexico, fleeing from an expected capture of the town by constitutionalists, reached this city today, headed by Dr. P. Rehue. There were several women in the party and Dr. Rehue said about 100 French women had been taken aboard foreign merchants ships lying in the harbor on the occasion of the last constitutionalist attack, October 26th.

Four French citizens, he said, were taken prisoner by the insurgents and beaten almost to death.

WANNAMAKER ON STAND.

Tells What He Knows of Philadelphia Branch of His Business.

Washington, November 22.—John Wannamaker, postmaster general, under the Harrison administration, and one of the best known merchants in the country, appeared today before Attorney General McReynolds, at the Department of Justice to tell what he knows of the alleged failure of his Philadelphia house to pay full duties on thousands of dollars worth of goods imported during a period covering many years.

A previous case against the Wannamaker firm was settled in the closing days of the last administration by the payment of $100,000, acknowledged by officials to be possibly twice the amount of duty that should have been collected.

Henry Arnold, special assistant to the attorney general, has spent several months in further investigation of this case and has developed a new line of evidence. The department had no comment to make tonight on the case, but a decision as to whether it shall be pressed will be reached soon.

For second delegate to the British Trades Union Congress, Mathew Woll, of the Photograph Engravers' Union, was unanimously elected.

A conference of delegates was held last night at which it was agreed to place John P. White on executive board as John Mitchell had desired. This removed all talk of opposition to Samuel Gompers for the presidency and his election was unanimous.

Urge Appointment of Peoria Publisher

Senators Friendly to Appointment of Pindell Are Anxious for His Nomination to Come Up.

Washington, Nov. 22.—Democratic Senators friendly to the appointment of H. M. Pindell, the Peoria publisher, as ambassador to Russia, let it be known today that they will make an extreme effort to secure an early confirmation on his nomination. Should the Senate fail to act before the special session ends December 1st, President Wilson will have to make the nomination again to the regular session.

The foreign relations committee will take up the Pindell case Wednesday. Several members of the committee have served notice that they will ask for an investigation of correspondence between Mr. Pindell and an Illinois Representative involving an alleged discussion of postoffice appointments.

BOOZE OUT OF OHIO.

Saloons Close—Many Celebrate With Balls and Sales.

Columbus, O., Nov. 22.—Proprietors of more than 3,300 saloons in Ohio closed their places of business tonight in accordance with the provisions of the State liquor license law, which limits the number of saloons in "wet territory" to one for each 500 population. The saloon keepers who quit business tonight had been refused license by county boards. The majority of the saloons which will not be allowed to re-open, are located in Cleveland, Cincinnati, Columbus and Toledo.

Many saloon keepers disposed of their stock tonight at "bargain counter" sales. Several well known wine rooms celebrated the closing of their doors with balls, music and other attractions.

DIRECT ELECTION LAWS.

Temporary Laws Until States Can Change Their Constitutions.

Senator Poindexter's bill providing that Senators shall be elected under present laws governing the selection of Representatives-at-large, or Governors until each State has made provision for election under the new constitutional amendment, was recommended for passage.

Controversies now pending over the selection of Senators from Alabama and Maryland have resulted from the lack of explicit laws.

CURRENCY BILL BEFORE SENATE

Owen Will Open the Debate for Administration Faction on Monday.

MEETING WITH MANY DELAYS

Senator Hitchcock Will on Tuesday Explain to the Senate the Anti-Administration Side of the Question.

Washington, Nov. 22.—The administration currency bill with the amendments proposed by the divided Senate Banking and Currency committee was laid before the Senate today. Debate on the measure will begin Monday. The bill as passed by the House was made "unfinished business."

Senator Owen will fire the opening gun in the debate for the administration forces. His speech probably will occupy the entire day. On Tuesday Senator Hitchcock will begin the attack on the administration's proposals in a speech setting forth the position of his faction of the committee. Debate will probably continue until the end of the special session, a week off.

Although the administration finally has succeeded in getting the currency bill before the Senate, other obstacles threaten to delay the measure. On December 1st, the Senate will set aside the currency bill and, by agreement, take up the bill giving San Francisco the right to secure a water supply from the Hetch-Hetchy valley. The measure will be disposed of by December 6th, but on December 8th the Senate has agreed to take up a bill giving the President authority to build a government railroad in Alaska.

Long Drawn Out.

Senate leaders were not inclined to predict when the currency bill might be finally acted upon, but it was declared certain that its consideration would run well into next year, probably up to about the first of February.

The bill as reported by the administration section of the committee headed by Chairman Owen, follows closely the lines of the House measure and contains only such amendments as President Wilson was willing to accept.

Senator Hitchcock, Democrat, and the five Republicans submitted a draft materially changing the bill, and proposing four reserve banks owned by the public and controlled by the government.

Both sections of the committee agreed on concentration of reserves, their volume and mobilization, the volume of the capital of the proposed banks, promotion of an open discount market, provision for elastic currency, the issuance of Federal reserve notes, that the Federal notes should be obligations of the United States; that the system should be a regional Federal reserve bank system, instead of a central bank, and upon the control of the system itself by the government.

WEST'S SENTENCE SUSTAINED

Secretary McAdoo Refuses to Suspend Punishment of Officer.

Washington, November 22.—Secretary McAdoo today sustained the sentence of the revenue cutter service court which suspended Captain Horace B. West for six months on half pay and to a public reprimand for neglect of duty and violation of regulations. Captain West was acquitted of a charge of conduct unbecoming an officer, and a gentleman. The main specification against him was neglect and failure to answer official correspondence directed to him as commanding officer of the revenue cutter Pamlico at Newbern, N. C. Strong pressure was brought to bear on Mr. McAdoo to reverse the findings of the court but after a thorough study of the case the secretary declined to interfere with the sentence.

Lawrence, Mass., Nov. 22.—Representatives of the textile mills today notified the State board of conciliation and arbitration that because of insufficient time to discuss the proposition with the mill owners, they could not arbitrate the demands of the striking mill firemen for an eight hour day.

OUTLINES

The American Federation of Labor re-elected Gompers to the presidency, voted on some special questions of interest, and adjourned to meet next year in Philadelphia.

The administration currency bill was yesterday placed before the Senate. Senator Owen will on Monday open the argument for the administration faction of the committee. Senator Hitchcock will follow him on Tuesday with the Republican side of the question.

READY FOR WHITE HOUSE WEDDING

Numerous Dinners and Other Intertainments Given in Honor of Couple

EAST ROOM IN READINESS

Aides for the Wedding Are Announced—All Requests for "Slices" of Big White Cake Are Turned Down.

Washington, Nov. 22.—After a day of motoring and tennis, Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson and Francis B. Sayre, who are to be married at the White House next Tuesday, were given a dinner tonight by Associate Justice Hughes, of the United States Supreme Court and Mrs. Hughes, at their residence here.

Covers were laid for 18 and besides Miss Margaret Wilson, the President's eldest daughter, the guests were from the Supreme Court and cabinet circles.

Mr. Sayre, who has been a guest at the White House since Thursday, went to the Hughes home today to remain until Tuesday. He is a classmate of Charles Evans Huhges, Jr., at Harvard law school, who is to be one of the ushers at the wedding.

The White House already reflects the animation incident to the wedding. Carpenters today completed the improvised altar in the East room where the wedding service is to be read and decorators were at work on other parts of the house.

The house is full of kinsfolk and relatives and the President and Mrs. Wilson are planning a big family dinner for tomorrow night.

Col. William W. Harts, U. S. A. chief aide to President Wilson, announced tonight the list of aides for the wedding as follows:

Lieut. Com. Needham L. Jones, U. S. N., naval aide to the President and the Secretary of the Navy; Dr. Carey T. Grayson, U. S. N.; Lieut. Richard S. Galloway, U. S. N.; Lieut. F. A. Todd, N. S. N.; Lieut. John J. London, U. S. N.; Lieut. Harold F. Wirgman, U. S. M. C.; Lieut. H. B. Clagett, U. S. A.; Lieut. Charles G. Rockwell, U. S. A.; Lieut. Beverly C. Dunn, U. S. A.; Lieut. Joseph C. Mehaffey, U. S. A.; Lieut. Joseph P. Alessire, U. S. A.; and Lieut. James A. Dorst, U. S. A.

The aides will be in attendance on the diplomatic corps and official guests generally.

Because numerous requests have been made for pieces of the wedding cake, a statement describing the cake as too small to gratify the desires of the public was given out at the White House today.

Lively Fight Over Job Held By Keith

Is In Prospect, According to Washington View—Colonel Taylor and Gouverneur in Lead.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Washington, D. C., November 23.—A lively fight is in prospect over the appointment of a collector of customs for the port of Wilmington. Col. Walker Taylor and M. F. H. Gouverneur are said to be the leading candidates for Mr. Keith's job.

Gouverneur is a personal friend of Secretary McAdoo and it is said back in the "lean" days he and McAdoo worked together in a small Tennessee town. Besides this Gouverneur has the backing of the Woodrow Wilson Club of Wilmington, an organization that was very successful when the time came to name a postmaster for North Carolina's leading shipping center.

Col. Walker Taylor has strong backing also and, it is rumored, has reasons to believe that Senator Simmons will be for him.

W. C. Hammer, who has been recommended for district attorney for the West, called on Secretary McRoynolds today. He said he had a pleasant interview.

Examination Not Until February.

Examinations for fourth-class postmasters will not be held in North Carolina until February 1st, next, according to information given Representative Doughton by the Civil Service Commission today.

BLOODY GARMENT CAUSES MYSTERY

Found in Box Car With Text Book and Revolver—Systematic Search

WERE CERTAIN OF MURDER

Lady Whose Name Was in the Book, Admits That She Was Stealing a Ride and Bumped Her Nose—Lost Revolver.

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 22.—A systematic search was begun today for the owner of a woman's blood-stained under garment and a high school textbook, which, with a revolver were found here by men unloading a car of lumber from South Bend, Wash.

Among several names written on a fly leaf of the book were those of Miss Elsie Melba Day, Springfield, Ore.; Alfred Lover, Des Moines, Ia.; and Mrs. D. H. Smith, Unionville, Ia. Miss Day has been at Des Moines visiting relatives for two weeks. She said she may have loaned the book to Miss Alice McCormack, who was her teacher at Springfield. Miss McCormack was located at Harrisburg, Ore. She did not remember borrowing the book and could not explain its presence here.

Miss Day said Mrs. Smith was her mother, but that she had not seen her since she was a child and does not know where she is.

Imprints of blood stained fingers were found on the edge of a small door at the end of the car. Finger marks also were found on the revolver.

Knew Nothing of It.

Southbend, Wash., Nov. 22.—Chief of Police Hicks said tonight investigation revealed that the car of lumber in which blood stained articles were found at Aurora, Ill., was not sealed when it left here. Consequently it could have been entered at any town where the train stopped. No woman of Southbend or vicinity has been reported missing in recent months.

Admits to "Crime."

Des Moines, Ia., Nov. 22.—Miss Elsie Melba Day, who for a time was thought to have been murdered somewhere between Southbend, Wash., and Aurora, Ill., but who was found today in Des Moines, admitted tonight that she and her brother, Alfred Love, had beaten their way from Spokane to Des Moines in a box car.

Their story explains the finding of a blood-stained woman's garment, a text book and revolver in the car of lumber from Southbend, Wash., when it was unloaded at Aurora, Ill.

"We rode in the box car," said Love, "and during the trip I struck my nose on the car. I had my sister's waist in my pocket and used it to wipe off the blood. The revolver is one I brought with me for protection. I dropped it and could not recover it."

The text book found in the car was one which they forgot to pack with their other belongings.

TAKEN BACK TO CHADBOURN.

Alleged Postoffice Robbers Arrested at Fayetteville Yesterday.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Fayetteville, N. C., November 22.—Berry and Lonza Nobles, charged with robbing the postoffice at Chadbourn of $200 in money and stamps, were arrested here this afternoon while preparing to board a train at the Atlantic Coast Line depot. The men had tickets for Chadbourn but this is supposed by the police to have been intended for a blind.

The Nobles were arrested in Dillon, S. C., Thursday, following the robbery Wednesday night, but were liberated after a search of their baggage which revealed nothing to connect them with the theft. Later it is claimed they showed a large quantity of stamps at a mill in Dillon. This again started the detective work in which Policeman J. T. Kelley, of the local force, played the chief part. After being taken here the crackmen were turned over to Chief of Police Benton, of Chadbourn, who was here tracking the men.

The police are satisfied that they have the right men. The prisoners were seen around Chadbourn up to one o'clock the night of the robbery, and bloodhounds followed a trail from the postoffice to their home near the town the next day.

HARVARD DEFEATS YALE IN FOOTBALL

Fifteen to Five Victory Snatched From Old Eli, in Presence of Large Crowd.

AUBURN WINS FROM GEORGIA

Human Steam Roller Ground to Pieces the Defenses of the Georgia Squad—Other Games Played Yesterday.

Cambridge, Mass., November 22.—The Harvard football team of 1913, with Fullback Charles E. Brickley in the stellar role, established a new epoch in Crimson gridiron history today by defeating Yale for the first time in the stadium by the score of 15 to 5.

Although 20 points were scored by the two elevens, neither succeeded in carrying the ball across the other's goal line. Seven times Brickley drove the ball spinning over the heads of the Yale players and five times it crossed the goal bar for Crimson points. Four times Guernsey, of Yale, essayed the same feat, but only once did the leather spheroid cross Harvard's goal. To the Eli's earned three points there was added an unearned two, due to an unintentional safety by Left End O'Brien, of Harvard.

Thus, thanks to Brickley, did Harvard defeat Yale for the second time in two years and win undisputed right to the Eastern inter-collegiate football championship. Excellent as was Brickley's play both in running and kicking, however, the splendid machine that Coach Haughton developed this Autumn earned equal glory for it was the concerted play and efforts of the eleven men as a whole that paved the way for the situations from which Brickley scored Harvard's 15 points.

That Guernsey on the other hand, failed to approach Brickley's feat was due almost entirely to the fact that the team in front of him could not hold or drive back the Crimson. That such should be the case clearly was accounted for by the coaching methods and system of attack and defense. Harvard played a well-balanced game in which the best and most conservative parts of the new and old football were successfully combined. Opposed to this was a Yale game that would undoubtedly have won under the "five yards in three downs" days; but it was absolutely unsuited to win against the Harvard eleven of 1913.

In every department of the game the Crimson surpassed the Blue and there was ample reason for the unrestrained rejoicing in Boston and Cambridge tonight.

Harvard in all gained 229 yards and nine first down in 57 rushes, against Yale's 145 yards and six first downs in 41 rushes. Mahan gained 777 yards in 16 punts to 452 yards in the 13 punts by Guernsey and Knowles.

Harvard players ran Yale punts 133 yards, against 54 yards thus regained by the Eli backfield. In penalties Yale lost 30 yards for holding and roumh tackling to Harvard's five yards for offside play.

Never in the history of this particular inter-'Varsity football classic was more gridiron history made or a greater or more brilliant throng of spectators assembled to witness the making of the same.

More than 47,000 of the alumni, under-graduates and adherents of the two universities were gathered from all parts of the country. It was a perfect Indian Summer day. The victory was the first over the Blue at Cambridge since 1901.

Brickley by his phenomenal playing and kicking in this and preceding games virtually assured himself of the captaincy of 1914 eleven and his record is so unusual as to indicate clearly that he will have no opponent.

As a Freshman he kicked four field goals for Harvard youngsters against Princeton and followed that feat by scoring all the points against the 'Varsity Tigers the next year. Last season he kicked three goals against Yale, gaining nine of the 20 points scored by Harvard and won both the Yale and Princeton games of 1913 by his remarkable drop and placement kicking. This season alone he has kicked eleven field goals in nine games.

That Harvard really defeated Yale by a score of 15 to 3 is conceded by the adherents of both elevens tonight, for the safety scored by O'Brien was a two-point gift to the Blue, due to a misunderstanding of the rules.

This play came in the first period. Immediately after Brickley's first field goal Guernsey kicked off from his own 40-yard line.

The ball hit the Harvard goal post bounding back to Harvard's five-yard line. O'Brien, to make doubly sure what he improperly considered a touchdown, picked it up while the Yale players were still yards away and carried it back across his own line where he touched it down, thus committing a safety play according to the ruling of Referee Langford.

The line-up:

Harvard	Position	Yale
O'Brien	LE	Avery
Hitchcock	LT	Talbott
Gilman	LG	Ketcham
Trumbull	C	Marting
Pennock	RG	Pendleton
Storer	RT	Warren
Hardwick	RE	Carter
Logan	QB	Wilson
Bradlee	LH	Ainsworth
Brickley	RH	Knowles
Mahan	FB	Guernsey

Referee, W. S. Langford, Trinity; umpire, Neil Snow, Michigan; head linesman, David L. Fultz, Brown; time of periods, 15 minutes each.

Harvard scoring: Goals from field, Brickley, four; goals from placement, one; Yale scoring: Goal from field, Guernsey; safety, O'Brien, of Harvard; substitutes: Harvard, Bettle for Bradlee; Dana for O'Brien; Soucy for Trumbull; Cowen for Hitchcock; Freedley for Logan; Mills for Cowen; Willets for Bettle. Yale: Brann for Carter; MacLeish for Avery; Way for Talbott; Arnold for Pendleton; MacLeish for Knowles.

Altanta, Ga., November 22.—Firing with the force of a pile driver, Auburn today crushed and shattered the University of Georgia's defense, defeating the Red and Black 21 to 7, and winning the Southern inter-collegiate football championship.

More than 8,000 frenzied spectators cheered the gridiron gladiators in the exciting contest.

Very few individual plays of a spectacular nature were executed. The Alabama backfield was hurled relentlessly against the Georgia line with machine-like regularity. In vain the Red and Black linesmen threw themselves before the human steam roller.

Kirk Newell, captain of the Auburn squad, and "Bob" McWhorter, the leader of the Georgia team, always were to be found in the thick of the fray. Each team, however, was prepared for the rival star and neither captain was able to make his customary brilliant runs.

The weather was perfect for spectators, but a trifle too warm for the players. When Henderson for Georgia, kicked off to Newell the Auburn battering ram began its execution at once, but after a penalty Newell was forced to punt, giving the ball to Georgia on the latter's 45-yard line. McWhorter, Paddock, Powell and Crump drove fiercely into the Auburn line to within striking distance of the Alabama goal. Paddock then received the ball, shot it to Logan who sprinted across the goal line. Henderson kicked goal.

Auburn tied the score early in the second quarter. Straight line plunges carried the ball to Georgia's four-yard line and Harris drilled through tackle and guard for a touchdown. Arnold kicked goal.

Auburn received the ball on the kick off for the third quarter and Newell, Arnold and Harris battered their way down the field to within 25 yards of Georgia's goal line. Christopher, fresh and eager, replaced Harris at full for Auburn. His strength told on the weakening Georgia line and by short, consistent gains, he reached the Georgia goal. Arnold again kicked the goal.

Auburn had possession of the ball in the center of the field when the third quarter ended. The Alabama backfield began the final period with a rush that netted continual gains of five and ten yards. Captain Newell unexpectedly circled left end for 17 yards and was stopped within seven yards of the goal. Christopher plunged through for Auburn's final touchdown and Arnold kicked goal.

Stagg Field, Chicago, Nov. 22.—Out-classing, out-gaming and outlucking their opponents, University of Chicago football stars defeated the University of Wisconsin men 19 to 0 today and captured the undisputed title of conference champions.

The Maroons played a steady, machine-like game. Norgren's long punts were an important factor, dives into the line by Pierce and Gray clinched scores and a great run of 82 yards for a touchdown by Gray, who had intercepted a forward pass, was the spectacular event of the game.

Gray's run turned a possible Wisconsin touchdown into one for the Maroon. The Badgers had the ball on Chicago's 20-yard line and with four yards to make in one attack, Quarterback Bellows tried a pass. Gray leaped in the air and pulled down the oval. Only Bellows stood between him and the Badger goal and by a long sweeping run he eluded the Cardinal quarter, ousped Oftsie and planted the ball behind the posts.

Rain kept the crowd down to about 25,000. Many ticket scalpers suffered losses. The field was slippery but not soft and the rain ceased before the game started.

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 23.—The Carlisle Indians defeated Syracuse today 35 to 27. The game was one of the most spectacular ever seen in this city. Syracuse was the first to score but they followed with a touchdown and all through the game the two elevens took turns in scoring.

During the first three minutes of play Castle, the Orange halfback, broke away from the Indians in an end run and gained 60 yards for the first touchdown.

MR. COOPER RETURNS.

His Visit to Washington Was Not a Political Mission.

In an interview with Mr. Thos. E. Cooper, who returned to the city from Washington, D. C., on yesterday morning he states that the Star's Washington correspondent evidently jumped at conclusions as he did not call on Secretary McAdoo for political purposes, nor did he lead a delegation in behalf of Mr. M. F. H. Gouverneur for collector at this port.

He states that his visit to Washington was not in any way pertaining to political matters but simply on business. When asked if any delegation had been sent to Washington in behalf of Mr. Gouverneur he stated that he knew of none and believed that no delegation had called on the Secretary.

Mr. Cooper stated that while in conversation with the Washington correspondent he did say he was favorable to Mr. Gouverneur's candidacy and he did not think Mr. Gouverneur needed any recommendation to Secretary McAdoo.

HIS UNIQUE RECORD.

Mr. R. J. Jones Has Served Three Corporations for Half Century.

Many friends in Wilmington, where he has spent his long and useful life, will read with interest the following from Friday's Winston-Salem Journal relative to the unique record of Mr. Richard J. Jones:

"All Odd Fellows in Winston-Salem are familiar with the long period of service of Mr. Richard J. Jones, of Wilmington, as Grand Treasurer of the Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F., of North Carolina, but, perhaps, a few of them do not know that he also possesses a record for service in two other corporations which is novel and which probably cannot be eclipsed by any man living.

"Mr. B. H. Woodell, Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge, who for the past 29 years has been making settlements with the Grand Treasurer, has received a letter written by Mr. Jones, who on February 5, 1914, will celebrate his 92nd birthday, telling of his unique record.

"The letter is written in Mr. Jones' own hand-writing and is as firm as a young man's and concludes with the remarks, 'am feeling young today.'

"Mr. Jones bears the novel distinction of being now in active service as treasurer for three corporations and in the fact that he has been treasurer of the same three corporations for half a century.

"He has been treasurer of the Grand Lodge for more than 50 years; treasurer of the Oakdale Cemetery Company, of Wilmington, for more than 40 years; and treasurer for the Wilmington Gas Light Company for 45 years on the 13th of this month.

"Mr. Jones is still in perfect health and is remembered by many Winston Salem people as he attended a meeting of the Grand Lodge here a few years ago."

THE WEEK AT Y. M. C. A.

Splendid Progress Being Made Along All Lines of Work.

The past week has seen a number of new features inaugurated which along with the other activities will add greatly to the usefulness of the Y. M. C. A. In the Boys' Department the parliamentary debate and the classified athletic contest have excited a great deal of interest. The opening of the Basketbal League, the opening of the swimming pool, and the increased interest in the gymnasium and other departments are also especially worthy of mention.

Last night the religious work committee of the association met for organization. Supper was served at 6:30 and at 7 o'clock the meeting was called to order by Secretary Huntington. He outlined briefly the plan of organization and the field of service before the committee. Mr. R. F. Coleman was elected as chairman and Mr. J. W. Hollis, secretary. Chairmen for the sub-committees were also named as follows: Dr. J. T. Murphy, Bible study; Louis Williams, extension work; Mr. W. M. Cumming, foreign work; Mr. A. B. Croom, Jr., men's meetings.

The attention of the committee was also called to the coming of Mr. E. T. Cotton, secretary of the Foreign work department of the inter-denominational committee, and plans were outlined for special meetings. He will speak in the First Baptist church on Sunday morning and in the afternoon to a mass meeting of men in the Y. M. C. A. building. A conference has been arranged for the following Monday at noon.

This afternoon the usual song and prayer service will be held at 5 o'clock to which all the men and boys of the city are invited.

Vumos, Thursday night at 7 o'clock; School house, Ashe postoffice, Friday night 7 o'clock; Shallotte, Saturday night at 7 o'clock; Southport, Monday night, December 1st, at 7 o'clock; Hill Creek, Tuesday night at 7 o'clock; Town Creek, Wednesday night at 7 o'clock; Farmer's Turnout, Thursday night at 7 o'clock; Summerville, Friday night at 7 o'clock.

These speakers will illustrate their lectures with moving picture slides which will show the infested cattle from six months to three years of age, and swine in the non-infested territory where ticks are unknown. These pictures will show in detail the superior value of cattle and swine in the non-infested territory over this of the infested territory besides teaching many valuable lessons in livestock growing and their care.

JUSSERAND GUEST OF HONOR

French Ambassador Sits Down With Governor and Mrs. Craig at the Home of Hon. R. W. Winston—Dr. Poteat.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 22.—French Ambassador J. J. Jusserand was the guest of honor at breakfast this morning in the home of Hon. R. W. Winston, and left at 12:15 o'clock for Washington. He was here to deliver the address for the annual session of the North Carolina Literary and Historical Association. The distinguished ambassador charmed every one of the hundreds of people who had the pleasure of meeting him. At the breakfast this morning the guests of Judge Winston were Ambassador Jusserand, Governor and Mrs. Craig, Mrs. Margaret Busbee Shipp and Mrs. J. Lindsay Patterson, of Winston-Salem, the donor of the Patterson memorial cup that is annually awarded for the best literary work of the year in this State and went this year to Mr. Horace Kephart, of Bryson City, for his "Our Southern Highlanders."

Dr. Poteat at Charleston.

Dr. W. L. Poteat, president of Wake Forest College, and one of Governor Craig's appointees on the special commission for the adjustment of the intrastate freight rates, was here today on his way to Charleston, S. C., to deliver a Y. M. C. A. address Sunday. He will return in time to be here next Tuesday for the organization of the special commission and says it is the purpose of the commission to get to work on the adjustment of the rates just as speedily as possible.

Wanted in Hoke County.

A requisition on the Governor of New York was issued today by Governor Craig for W. S. Percival, who is wanted in Hoke county to answer the charge of embezzlement. He is alleged to have embezzled $3,000 from a widow in Hoke county. Solicitor Sinclair wrote the Governor that the case was one in which there seemed to be ample evidence to convict and that he thought the State could well afford to go to the expense of extradition in the interest of justice and law enforcement.

SKILLED WORKMEN IN DEMAND.

In Many Sections of the State There Are Not Enough.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 22.—Commissioner of Labor and Printing M. L. Shipman, in making public the summary of trades conditions in this State as they will be set out in his forthcoming annual report, says there is steady employment for all kinds of workmen in all sections of the State, the supply being in fact considerably below the demand in many sections. This applies especially to skilled labor. He says the supply of finished workmen seems to be on the decrease, due, possibly, to growing abandonment of the old apprenticeship system. Unskilled workmen work a little while in one shop and then go to some other claiming to be journeymen and procure employment at standard wages. Many really skilled workmen take scientific training just as soon as they can stand the expense and then become superintendents. This causes a gap between the workmen and the management that ought not to exist.

AT WHITEVILLE TOMORROW.

Burgaw Confederate Monument Hearing on Restraining Order.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Burgaw, N. C., Nov. 22.—Burgaw has been all astir since Judge Rountree on Thursday issued an order restraining Mr. Cooper and the mayor and board of commissioners from erecting the Confederate monument on Fremont and Wright streets. Mr. Cooper arrived Wednesday and began Thursday morning excavating for the base of the monument at the spot selected by the ladies who had the matter in charge. The order was served Friday morning and the work stopped. The order is made returnable at Whiteville Monday, the 24th inst., at which time both sides will have a hearing. It is confidently expected here that the order will be dissolved. The ground upon which the order is obtained is that the erection of the monument at the intersection of these two streets will impede traffic.

TWO DEATHS AT BURGAW.

Mrs. Sarah E. Pierce Passes Away—Child Dies.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Burgaw, N. C., November 22.—Mrs. Sarah E. Pierce, widow of the late Edward Pierce, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John N. George, here last night about 9 o'clock, following an attack several days ago of pneumonia. Mrs. Pierce suffered an attack of paralysis about 20 years ago, but had improved greatly, when about eight years ago she was injured by a fall to such an extent that she had been confined to her bed ever since. She had been blind for three years. The remains were laid to rest here this afternoon, the funeral being conducted by Rev. R. L. Clark, in the presence of a large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends.

Little Myrtle Rivenbark, the six-year-old daughter of Mr. Richard Rivenbark, died Friday night about 9 o'clock, dropsy being the cause of her death. The funeral will be held here Sunday.

HASN'T RESIGNED BIG JOB.

Bailey Quits Custodianship of Federal Building "For Cause."

(Special Star Telegram.)

Raleigh, N. C., November 22.—Collector of Internal Revenue J. W. Bailey said today of his reported resignation sent out from Washington that the resignation pertains only to the custodianship of the government building here and has nothing whatever to do with the office of collector. The facts in the case are that there are five negro laborers employed in the building and their appointment is controlled in Washing on. One of them recently resigned at the request of Collector Bailey and the resignation was not accepted at Washington.

Mr. Bailey wrote Secretary McAdoo that he would not serve as custodian of the building if he was not allowed to control the appointment and work of the laborers through whose labors he was to keep the building in proper condition. This is the situation at this time and it is expected that the incident will have the effect of giving the custodians of the government buildings the control of these laborers places under them. There is no salary connected with the custodianship that Mr. Bailey resigns.

ANSON FAIR CLOSES.

Canned Goods Exhibit Superior to Best at State Fair.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Wadesboro, N. C., November 22.—The first Anson county fair closed today and has been largely attended for three days. The exhibits of canned goods, household supplies, fancy work and poultry were better than ever seen here before. The canned goods exhibits excelled those at the State Fair where the Anson exhibit won first prize this year. The exhibits of hogs, cattle and horses attracted much attention and the attendance at the fair yesterday was more than 1,000 people. The corn and tomato clubs made a delightful feature of the fair.

Anson county is making progress faster along industrial lines than ever before and the people are planning for a greater fair next year. Prof. J. C. McNutt and Mr. T. E. Brown, of Raleigh, talked to the farmers and assisted in awarding the many prizes for farm products, pretty horses, colts, cattle and hogs.

LINEMAN SEVERELY SHOCKED.

Durham Man Suspended in Mid-air by Wires for Some Time.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Durham, N. C., November 22.—Kelly Crabtree, an employe of the Inter-State Telephone Company, received a severe electric shock today while up a pole in front of the First Baptist church working on a wire. Crabtree's climbing hooks pulled out of the pole and he fell, striking live wires. It was some minutes before he could be cut down, his safety belt having caught on the wires and held him suspended in mid-air. The electric current, however, was immediately cut off. Meanwhile a crowd gathered below and watched spellbound.

Dr. Purinton arrived and set to work with a pulmotor, which probably saved the unfortunate man's life. He was rushed to a hospital in an automobile. Physicians say that he will probably survive, unless internal injuries from the shock develop.

NEW DEPOTS LOCATED.

To be Built at Rose Hill and Wallace by Atlantic Coast Line.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 22.—The Corporation Commission issued orders today specifying the locations for new passenger stations at Rose Hill and Wallace. The new station at Wallace is to be on the Parsley-Boney lot which is 65 feet south of the site of the present old station. The Rose Hill station is to be located south of and across the street from the present station. The locations for both those stations have been in dispute for some time and the commission gave hearings at both places very recently. Both are to be erected by the Atlantic Coast Line. Plans are to be submitted for approval within thirty days.

FIRE AT WEST DURHAM.

Defective Flue Causes Loss of More Than $3,000.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Durham, N. C., Nov. 22.—A defective flue caused a big fire in West Durham this morning, loss being over $3,000. The fire started in the home of J. E. Bowen, postmaster of West Durham, and spread rapidly to the next house. A whole block on Blacknall street was threatened, as the houses were very close together. A voluntary fire company was quickly organized and the long hose kept in the out-house of the Erwin cotton mill was dragged to the scene. Fire was fought effectively and loss was much less than had at first been anticipated.

NEVER LOST YET.

Trinity Tennis Team Wins Four From Wake Forest.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Durham, N. C., Nov. 22.—Trinity continued a record of unbroken victories in tennis by defeating Wake Forest yesterday and today. Yesterday the teams met in two sets of doubles. Trinity won both, 6-2, 6-3. Today Anderson, of Trinity, played Middleton, of Wake Forest, two sets of singles and won both, score 6-0, 6-0. White, of Trinity, played Sledd, of Wake Forest, two sets of singles today and won both, score 6-3, 7-5.

The present Trinity tennis team has never been defeated. It has played within the past two years nearly every big college in the State except Carolina and has won every game.

NORTH CAROLINA WINS.

Has Finest Fruits and Nuts in Whole Country.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Raleigh, N. C., November 22.—That North Carolina has carried off another highest award for the finest fruits and nuts in competition with all sections of the country, is the news conveyed to the State Department of Agriculture in a telegram that came from State Horticulturalist W. N. Hutt, who has an exhibit of fruits and nuts grown in this State in the fruit exposition of the American Pomological Society at Washington, D. C. Commissioner of Agriculture W. A. Graham says this is just another evidence of the complete superiority of the North Carolina products. There has not, he says, been a Southern or National fruit exposition in a number of years in which North Carolina has not carried off the first prize and numbers of the minor prizes.

THE RECORDER'S COURT.

Two Negroes Sentenced to Six Months Each on County Roads.

"Guilty, boss," was the response of Dick Graham and "Stunner" Spicer, both colored, to the query of Solicitor Peschau yesterday in cases against them charging them with receiving stolen goods, knowing them to be stolen. "Six months on the county roads," said Recorder Furlong, and it was all over. Frank Smith, colored, plead guilty Friday to having stolen a lot of goods from the store of Dlugin Bros., and was given 12 months on the roads. Having had more than he could use he divided up with his friends. Graham and Spicer each got several shirts and other merchandise from him, but failed to get away with them.

Peter Howard, colored, was charged with having received a gold watch from Smith, but gave it back to him, then got it back again, and then gave it back. He seemed finally to have kept the watch, but it couldn't be proved, and he was discharged.

Edward Nixon, Hezekiah Miller and Robert Loftin, all colored, were charged with having sold fresh meat in the city in violation of city ordinance which prescribes that those from the country may not sell less than a quarter. The negroes were represented by L. Clayton Grant, Esq., and he maintained that the ordinance was unlawful in that it denied to citizens a constitutional right to dispose of the products of their farm. There was an extended argument by both Solicitor Peschau and Mr. Grant, and Recorder Furlong decided to leave the matter open until Monday so that he could look into law more carefully.

Judgment was suspended upon payment of the costs in cases against Martin Edwards and John Nichols, both colored, charged with speeding. Judgment was suspended upon payment of the costs in a case against Mr. A. G. Ahrens, charging him with running an automobile at night without a rear light. A case against J. H. Saxton, white, charging assault and battery, was continued until Monday.

Cora Murphy, colored, was fined $25 and the costs for keeping a gambling house. William Nance, colored, was charged by Maggie Maddox, colored, with disorderly conduct, but the charge was adjudged frivolous and malicious, and she was taxed with the costs.

Judgment was suspended in a case against Mr. R. T. Burton, a merchant, for displaying his wares on the sidewalk. Mr. Burton said that he didn't know he was violating the law, and promised not to place his goods on the sidewalk again.

WILMINGTON DEALER EXPLAINS.

Mr. D. J. Fergus Tells Why Morehead Fisherman Didn't Sell Fish.

"I noticed in your paper today that a Morehead fisherman criticized the fish dealers of this city because they did not buy 25,000 pounds of fish which had been caught by him and his crew, and that he stated that if he carried them to Morehead City he would have had no trouble in disposing of them," said Mr. D. J. Fergus, a well known nsh dealer of Wilmington, to a Star man yesterday.

"Now it is a fact," Mr. Fergus continued, "that Morehead fish dealers do handle smaller fish than the dealers of this city, but the fish offered for sale by the fisherman the other day were rotten, and unfit for any purpose except to be used for fertilizer. I will say further that the method of fishing by this class of fishermen who use purse seines with meshes so small that a minnow can hardly escape through them is fast destroying the fish industry that is worth hundreds of thousands of dollars to the people of North Carolina. These seines catch millions of fish that are entirely too small for food.

"This is a matter in which every consumer as well as those engaged in the fish business are vitally concerned because fish can be used as a substitute for other kinds of meat, and if the people of the whole State don't become aroused to the fearful waste of this valuable food the fishing industry will soon be a thing of the past."

It's no sign of medesty that a grafter always seeks to cover up the naked truth.

Wilmington now has the chance of its life if it knows how to play the game.

Wilmington will be very much of a Philly town when the ball season opens next year.

Anyhow, there doesn't seem to be as many black eyes among men as there used to be.

We haven't been tendered the Mexican situation but we wouldn't have it under any consideration.

The man who was "never heard of before" often does things better than the man who is always in the limelight.

The only thing that dominates the Wilson administration is consciesce. It follows along high-minded lines.

Somehow or other it is hoped and confidently expected that Huerta will get cold feet when the pressure gets hotter.

Tender veal is delicious but it means less beef. Every time a calf goes to the butcher's block it increases the price of beef.

The business man who is looking for a man who stays on his job is respectfully referred to our old college chump, Victoriana Huerta.

The ghost of a dead town never comes back to disturb the rest of its denizens. The spirit of the times can always be seen in a live town.

Three Cincinnati girls entered a walking contest but it is nothing strange that the one with the largest feet covered less ground that the one with the smallest feet.

Colonel Roosevelt says he is delighted with his trip through the wilds of South America. That "comes natural," as they say in South Carolina. He hates anything that isn't rough.

Nineteen women were arrested in an Illinois town on a charge of fraudulent voting in the last election. That is no evidence of the unfitness of women for the ballot. It shows that a few women think they are as slick as the average man.

Says the Atchison (Kans.) Globe: "If a man you call on squirms and wiggles and looks troubled, he's busy and wants you to go." About the only thing that will stop him from squirming and wiggling is to pull a dollar on him in a threatening manner.

Napoleon set the precedent, but only men like Huerta seem to think they can follow it. Even Nap's experience was a bitter one, for he failed to display the masterful statesmanship that would measure up with his military genius and inordinate ambition.

A Kentucky county boasts that it is out of debt. The fact is it never contracted a debt of any kind and it has the same old court house and the same old roads it had when Heck was a pup. We'd like to see the list of young men who left that county to go somewhere else.

In his St. Louis speech a few days ago, Secretary Josephus Daniels exhibited the liberal side of his nature. He declared that blind partisanship is wrong. Sure it is. Republicans should quit it and be clever enough to serve in any office that us Democrats will let them have.

When a man gets so he can live off his unearned increment, he thinks everybody is going to take it away from him but a Republican administration. It is a mistaken idea, of course, but having proven itself to be the rich man's friend, the G. O. P. can but gratefully acknowledge the gratitude of its timorous beneficiaries.

A Republican postmaster in Oklahoma tendered his resignation to take effect immediately but he is indignant because the government ignores his resignation. He should calm himself. The probability is that the government fell dead at the idea of a Republican's resignation, or that it has to delay the appointment of his successor till the aspirants for the office get done knifing each other.

THE LIFE OF BOOSTING.

The Boosters' Club is a new organization that has just come into existence in Savannah. The Morning News welcomes it into the field as it promises to supply a long felt want in that city, namely, "a civic spirit that will manifest itself persistently and continually, not spasmodically." The Savannah club has begun well and what it is doing is appreciated and approved by the people of that fine old Georgia city. The News expresses the hope that it will not only get on the job but stick to it and stay on it. That very valuable and highly valued contemporary says:

"It is to be hoped that the Boosters' Club has come to stay, not for a week or a year, but for many years, at least until Savannah has reached a point where she will be so big and prosperous that she will have no need of boosting—where outsiders will be boosting her all the time."

Booster organizations certainly ought to "come to stay," and the fact that many flourish like a green bay tree and then peter out, is a subject that such clubs ought to investigate. There is a reason why interest dies out and boosting ceases. We believe we know the reasons—three of them at least. One is that they are not properly financed to carry on systematic, methodical work. Another is that the men who have plenty of money usually take mild interest in the organizations which propose to promote the development of their city. They've got theirs and they keep it, while as a general thing some of the most enthusiastic, enterprising and public spirited men of a community are natural born boosters. They start in with enthusiasm, but when they find that the class of men to be benefitted most, stick as close to home as they do to their money, their interest wanes.

It takes three things to boost—hot air, hot tamales and money. When hot air gives out, the hot tamales cool off, for they find out that talk amounts to nothing unless it inspires efforts that have to be financed if booster ideas are successfully carried out. Hot air is good to start in on, but after we have talked and talked and talked and the simoleon is not in sight to carry out some well defined plan and fixed purpose, the booster finally gets cold feet.

Then there is that chief cause for the waning of booster organizations. They fail to settle upon a definite plan that can be backed by the whole community and carried to success. The people of a city have got to believe in their city. They have got to know it and be satisfied that the potentialities, adaptabilities and possibilities are there. They must be convinced of it, so they can convince others. They must convince themselves to the point of investing in their cities themselves and be able to show others what they are doing themselves. When the men of a city know their city they are prepared to fight the battle for it and keep up the enthusiasm and go forward with the work. It is just as the Savannah News says with reference to that city's club:

"The club has begun well and what it is doing is appreciated and approved. It has named a booster day and it is certain that it will make it a notable one. In the meantime it should make itself acquainted with all of the city's activities, the number and size of her factories, her commerce, her wholesale business and distributing houses, number and resources of her banks, the ability of her retail merchants to supply the wants of her people and the people of her tributary country and with her attractions for tourists. And this information it should spread abroad in every available way. Its members should be prepared to tell it to visitors and to those they meet in their trips about the country and when they are on their vacations.

"A great many people of Savannah don't know their own city. Some of them know New York better, and even do their trading there, though they make their money here. When they know their home city they will be more inclined to do their trading here and to advise others to do so. The club should miss no opportunity to advise people to come and make their homes here and to urge the encouragement of factories because they afford people the means of earning a living. It should boost plans for the development of the city's commerce and for the bringing of the adjacent lands under cultivation. The field for the club's activities is a large one—large enough to keep it busy every day in the year and year in and year out."

All that applies in Wilmington. There is plenty of work to do, but when a booster organization gets down to work it has to have money to do it right.

THE BELT RAILROAD FOR MANUFACTURING.

Speaking about the adaptabilities of Wilmington for manufacturing, they are here in the means of rail and water transportation, a belt line railroad, plenty of raw materials, a fine climate and a rich field for distribution and exploitation. The harbor front and the belt railroad, both alongside each other and connecting at two ends of a circle, offer ample and admirable sites for manufacturing and industrial plants. That is the reason that there are nearly 50 manufacturing establishments around the belt line, extending six miles along the harbor front and in and out of the city. The tracks run in the city tax limits and circle around outside the city limits where the low county tax rate obtains. Yet the chief advantages of the belt line are that it links up rail and water transportation and provides all sorts of sites for diversified manufacturing in the city and just outside the city.

That is the reason the Shepard Chemical Company, recently organized in this city, has located its plant on the belt line, as will be noted in a local reference in The Star this morning. It adds another industry to the long list of manufacturing establishments which have planted themselves along the railway tracks that loop the city with a ribbon of iron. It is surprising how many industries are to be found on the belt line, but as a matter of fact it has got to be so important to the industrial life and advantages of Wilmington that the Atlantic Coast Line provides daily service around the line to deliver freights and take up shipments from the various plants.

That belt line ought to be electrified so the people of the city as well as visitors could go around the belt and get a better impresssion of industrial Wilmington. We can recall at least 40 factories on the circle, including two cotton mills, two cotton-seed oil mills, four lumber companies, three iron works, a machine shop, two ice factories, a big candy factory, a large box factory, a fertilizer factory, a bag factory, a wine factory, a mattress factory, a handle and spoke factory, a barrel factory, a cut stone plant, several chemical works, four peanut factories, and various plants along the docks of the city. There is a hum of industry around the belt line, and transportation around it ought to be made easy for those who would like to get in touch with the industrial side of the city.

THE NEW RATE FIGHT.

There is nothing surprising in the fact that the Virginia cities which have long had the advantage in freight rates over North Carolina cities, should be fighting confirmation of the recent compromise of this State with the railroads. The Virginia business interests are appearing before the Inter-State Commerce Commission to oppose its approval of the proposed freight rate reduction in the interest of North Carolina. They will hardly succeed.

It is a new rate fight, and it is one set of commercial interests against another. However, North Carolina has both reason and justice on her side and it is hardly possible that the Inter-State Commerce Commission will disapprove the justice which the railroads themselves have conceded to shippers in North Carolina.

The rate question is now getting to be practical as well as the interesting point. While the inter-State rate question is before the Commission at Washington, the Justice intra-State rate commission recently appointed by Governor Craig will meet in Raleigh next Tuesday to organize for business. We will then have the transportation question handled from two angles that greatly affect the State and its industries and resources.

The officeholders who cling to an office and calmly survey the insurrection on the outside are Republicans and Democrats who happen to be in looking out. Progressives would manifest the same fidelity (to themselves) if they only had the chance. The human nature plank of a platform is stood on by every politician and that's one of the reasons why they all look alike to a man up a tree.

SPECIAL CHURCH SERVICES.

Preaching Each Night This Week at Church of Good Shepherd.

Beginning this morning there will be a series of special services at the church of the Good Shepherd, corner Sixth and Queen streets, conducted by the rector, Rev. Thomas P. Noe. Each morning this week at 7:30 there will be a short communion service, lasting for half an hour, and every night beginning at 8 o'clock there will be preaching in the church.

On Thursday, the National Thanksgiving Day, there will be a special service at 11 o'clock instead of the night service, and offerings in money and kind will be made for the orphans in Charlotte.

Sunday, November 30th, is both St. Andrew's Day, and the first Sunday in Advent, and the services on that date will be appropriate to these occasions. There will be a corporate communion for St. Andrew's Brotherhood and for all the congregation.

Rev. Dr. William H. Milton, rector of St. James' Episcopal church, will be the preacher at the Wednesday night service, and Rev. W. E. Cox, rector of St. John's, is expected to assist and to preach at some of the other services during the week. Attractive hymn music will be provided and the public is cordially invited to join with the rector and the congregation in the services which it is hoped will be helpful to all.

On Thanksgiving night at 8 o'clock there will be a Thanksgiving service at the Church of the Ascension, Third and Marsteller streets.

NEW RIVER BOAT.

The John W. Fredericks, Jr., Placed Into Commission.

The steamer lighter John W. Fredericks, Jr., built and owned by Capts. J. D. Price and J. W. Fredericks, which was launched a few weeks ago, made a trial trip down the river yesterday afternoon. The trip proved very satisfactory to the owners who state that the boat is now ready for active service on the river. The steamer will cater to river business from Southport to Fayetteville. The boat is equipped with modern improvements for handling freight of all classes. The tonnage of the new boat is 214. The owners of the steamer are Wilmingtonians; both having served for a number of years with the United States engineer department in this district, severing their connection with the government a few months ago to build their new boat. Capt. Price will be master of the vessel and Capt. Fredericks will be the engineer. There is said to be a big field here for a boat like the John W. Fredericks, Jr., and the clever and popular owners of the boat will doubtless do a large business.

AT THE BIJOU.

Three Big Warner Features for Week Beginning Tomorrow.

The Bijou will inaugurate a big Thanksgiving week programme tomorrow afternoon, starting out with the first of three magnificent Warner productions scheduled for the week on Monday afternoon.

Departing from the old rule, where a motion picture theatre took anything that the film manufacturers chose to send out, the Bijou management now selects their own pictures, from the offerings of all the manufacturers, getting a choice selection all the time.

A new piano, one of the finest in the South, has been ordered by the Bijou, and will cost the management $3,500. This piano has full orchestra attachments, and will indeed be a treat for Bijou patrons.

JUBILATE SERVICE TODAY.

Exercises at First Baptist Church Commemorating 25th Anniversay.

At the First Baptist church this morning at 11 o'clock there will be appropriate services commemorating the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of the Southern Baptist Convention. The pastor will preach a special sermon on "Why the Jubilate?" The programme will include a number of songs and other music which will make it a most enjoyable one. The members of the congregation and the public generally are cordially invited to attend the services.

The Woman's Auxiliary was organized 25 years ago at Richmond, Va. At the Southern Baptist Convention at St. Louis, Mo., last May a service was held, celebrating the anniversary of the founding of the Auxiliary, at which songs were used, especially prepared for the occasion. These will be used this morning. One of the hymns was written by Margaret Dudley Reynolds, of Anniston, Ala., and the other by Rev. Dr. E. C. Dargan, president of the Southern Baptist Convention. The music for the 90th Psalm, which will be used this morning, was written by Prof. Gustave Hagedorn, director of music in Meredith College at Raleigh, who is well known here.

FEDERAL COURT ADJOURNS.

Only One Civil Case Tried, This Being the Big Land Suit.

The Fall term of Federal Court has adjourned and Judge H. G. Connor, who presided, has returned to his home at Wilson. United States Marshal Claudius Dockery returned to his home at Raleigh yesterday. Only one civil suit was tried, this being the big land suit of Hugh W. Davis, receiver-trustee, against Ralph A. Carrier and others. This involves the title to about 600 acres of land lying in Pender and Onslow counties. The entire five days of court this week were taken up with the introduction of evidence. The jury was discharged early in the week, and Judge Connor will, after reading over the transcript of the evidence, render his decision in the matter. The case was submitted without argument by counsel for either side.

WANT INSPECTION OF STORES

Housewives' League Will Discuss Important Subject at Regular Meeting Tomorrow—Aid from Central Council.

A number of merchants of the city have expressed a desire that the Housewives League of Wilmington inspect their places of business under the system of gradings, authorized by the National organization, and this subject will be discussed by the members at a regular meeting of the league to be held in the Elks' Temple tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Other matters will also receive consideration, and it is important that all members attend.

The ladies of the city have manifested great interest in the purposes of the Housewives League, and the membership is rapidly growing, a large number having been added to the list since its organization a few weeks ago. The ladies composing the membership are gratified over the splendid results that have already been achieved, and hope to do even greater things in the future. The organization has already proven itself to be one of the potent factors in questions affecting the general upbuilding of the city, especially in matters pertaining to the home and domestic life.

The following card was issued last night by the Central Council:

"To the Editor of The Star:

"The members of the Housewives League have received so many suggestions and have been asked so many questions that we respectfully request you to give us space to explain what our organization is and what we hope to accomplish.

"The answer as to what it is is best given by quoting from the membership pamphlet issued by the National organization:

"Housewives League National Movement organized to uphold the enforcement of laws which affect food supplies, the family health, the cost of living and to secure further legislation, when necessary, toward that end. Educational, defensive, constructive.'

"What we expect to do as members of the National organization is best stated by quoting further from the pamphlet:

"'Members are requested:

"'To insist upon full weights and measures.

"'To insist upon cleanliness in the handling of food.

"'To protest against the exposure of all food to contamination from dirt, flies, or other infection and to refuse to purchase such food.

"'To read carefully all labels on canned and bottled goods and to report any violation of the pure food and drugs act.

"'To make personal investigation into the sanitary condition of their markets, grocery, bakery, dairy, laundry, delicatessen and confectionery stores.

"'To as far as possible, refuse to purchase cold storage poultry, fish, butter, eggs, fruit, etc., which have been held to the detriment of condition or advancement of price.

"'In justice to tradesmen, members are also requested:

"'To so plan their orders that but one delivery a day is required.

"'To pay cash or settle all credit accounts promptly.

"'To refrain from handling articles of food that are exposed for sale.

"'To patronize tradesmen who comply with the laws.

"'To give preference to food distributing stores that close not later than 7 P. M.

"As a local organization we mean to do all this and more.

"The public is familiar with the action taken by the league in regard to the attempt to place merchandise on the sidewalks and its results. Right on the heels of this nine of the local dairymen declared their intention of so doing and did raise the price of milk 25 per cent. The league appointed a committee to investigate the alleged reasons and to look into the local milk supply from all standpoints.

"In other cities the members of leagues personally inspect all places of business where food or beverages are handled. We expect to follow this method here, many of the merchants have expressed a desire for it. The inspection blanks are furnished by the National organization. A careful inspection of these prove that all the points are covered by the local laws.

"In preparation for these inspections we have obtained from the city over 300 copies of the city ordinance concerning food protection.

"Each member is provided with a copy and copies have been mailed to all persons engaged in handling food or beverages. Only those merchants who wish it will be inspected. Any one who has not sent in his name is requested to send it to the president, Mrs. William Latimer, during the coming week.

"A shop receiving 85 per cent or more is endorsed by the league and is entitled to display an official sign to that effect.

"One of the slogans of the league is 'know your market' and as a matter of education the housewives have been studying market quotations, freight rates, wholesale prices, local conditions, the laws concerning weights and measures, and other information which will be put to practical use as soon as possible.

"The meetings are held on the second and fourth Mondays of the month at the Elks' Temple. Any person wishing to become a member of this organization may do so at the next meeting or by sending her name and address with the annual due, $1.10, to the recording secretary, Mrs. C. L. Meister, or the treasurer, Mrs. E. L. Prince.

Colored Chautauqua Services.

There will be a special service at the colored chautauqua auditorium, located on Princess street, near Tenth, tonight, beginning at 8 o'clock when Elder Sydney Smith will deliver a discourse on the subject, "What is the Soul of Man, and Can It Die?" Elder Smith has just returned from Florida, where he spent some time holding meetings. Appropriate music will be furnished. The seats will be free and the public is invited.

"TO THE MEN OF TOMORROW."

I desire that all the boys and young men of Wilmington call and see my beautiful display of all wool fabrics from which I am making strictly-to-measure, both Knickerbocker and long pants suits for the present season. It is extremely popular that boys from the age of 12 to 18 years wear long pants three-piece suits. The prices, which range from $10 to $18 are very attractive. You are assured every courtesy and it places you under no obligation to look. Come early and avoid the rush of the holiday season which is rapidly approaching. I. PIONEER BOOSTERS MEET.

U. C. T.'s Had Enthusiastic Meeting Last Night—Waterways.

The pioneer Wilmington boosters, the members of Cape Fear Council No. 374, United Commercial Travelers, held their regular semi-monthly meeting last night. It was the largest attended and the most enthusiastic held in many months. Mr. C. J. Roberts, the Senior Councilor, presided and Mr. L. H. Burnett, the secretary, kept a records of the proceedings.

The members of Cape Fear Council have always been looked upon as among Wilmington's livest boosters both in the city and out and judging from the remarks made in the meeting last night the traveling men expect to talk and work for Wilmington with renewed energy in the future. The spirit of boosting is contagious, and it is hoped soon to have everybody in Wilmington and many out of it boosting for the city by the sea. The traveling men can be counted on every time to do their part.

Evidence that Cape Fear Council is always to the front when there is an opportunity to do something for the advancement of Wilmington and this section, is the fact that it was the only commercial body of Wilmington represented at the annual convention of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways association. Mr. Horace Pearsall had the honor to be the representative of the council at this important meeting. He was the only delegate attending from Wilmington, and one of three attending from the State. He made a most interesting report of the convention to the council last night. Mr. Pearsall believes the development of the waterways will have an important bearing on the future commerce and said that just such meetings as the one at Jacksonville will hasten the development.

Plans are being made for the annual outing to be held this year on December 27th. Several candidates were initiated last night.

DEATH OF MRS. BARDIN.

Passed Away Yesterday Morning at James Walker Hospital.

Many friends in the city were deeply grieved to learn yesterday of the death of Mrs. W. H. Bardin, which occurred at the James Walker Memorial Hospital yesterday morning at 7 o'clock after an operation several days ago. The funeral will be held this morning at 11 o'clock from Bladen Street Methodist church, and will be conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. L. Rexford. The interment will be in Bellevue cemetery.

Mrs. Bardin was a daughter of Mrs. Frances Powell, of Whiteville, and was 44 years of age. She was a devoted member of Bladen Street Methodist church, and always considered it a privilege to take part in the church work. She had a host of friends who will extend tender sympathy to the bereaved family in their great sorrow.

Surviving her besides her aged mother are her husband and two children, Misses Louise and Rebecca Powell, who live at the family home, No. 920 North Third street, and a number of brothers and sisters as follows: Messrs. I. C. Powell, of Acme; H. S. Powell, of Newberlin; A. D. Powell, of Hallsboro; B. M. and J. O. Powell, of Whiteville; Mrs. Annie Brown and Mrs. Cora Sessions, of Whiteville, and Mrs. Sallie McFayden, of Newberlin.

COLORED CONVICT SHOT

Joe Johnson, Colored, Attempted to Escape from Camp on Federal Point Road—Seriously Wounded.

Joe Johnson, a colored convict, was shot and seriously wounded at the convict camp on the Federal Point road, 11 miles south of Wilmington, by the foreman, Mr. E. L. Aiken, as the negro was attempting to make his escape yesterday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock. The bullet entered the back on the left side and passed through his body, making a clean hole through the fleshy part of the body. He was brought to the city, and placed in the James Walker Memorial Hospital.

The trouble occurred just after the convicts had finished eating dinner. Dr. John Thames, assistant health officer, was at the camp making a tour of inspection and also to see a sick convict. After Dr. Thames had completed his work he spied some persimmons nearby. He got a paper sack and started to get a supply to take back home. Mr. Aiken, the foreman, asked Johnson, after Dr. Thames had gone, to go and help him get the simmons. The negro demurred and refused to go and started around the house.

Mr. Aiken suspecting his purpose, followed him. When Johnson had gotten beyond the house on the other side and out of Mr. Aiken's sight for a moment he began running. Mr. Aiken started after him and called to him to stop, but he did not heed the command. The foreman then shot at him with a 32-calibre revolver three times, one of the shots taking effect in the back on the left side and passing through the fleshy part of the body.

Mr. Aiken was about 35 yards away from the negro when he shot. The bullets did not stop the negro, and he ran until he reached the woods several hundred yards away when he fell and called for help. Dr. Thames gave him the necessary surgical attention, and he was then placed in a cart on a mattress, and brought to Wilmington by Mr. Aiken. He was reported last night as being badly hurt, but it is thought that he will recover.

The negro was serving a four-year sentence, and had ten months yet to serve. Several months ago he was made a trusty, and yesterday when he refused to obey he was told that he would have to go to shoveling dirt again. It is said that this is the second sentence that he is serving on the roads, and that he once before attempted to mutiny.

ECONOMY.

Is one of the most abused words in the dictionary. It does not mean the mere saving of money as suggested by low prices. True economy consists in securing for the least money the highest value possible. Without the value you lose, no matter what you pay.

International Clothes mean true economy in the best sense of the word. It means that you get for your money more than that same money can purchase anywhere else, besides representing a high value that is worth while getting.

Try an International suit this season. Let us take your measure and give you a sample of what real tailoring stands for. Wonderful values for $15, $18 and $20. I. Shrier, the Largest Merchant Tailoring Establishment in the South, northeast corner Front and Princess streets.—Advertisement.

—Yesterday's Charlotte Observer: "Mr. B. F. Keith, collector of customs at Wilmington, who was in Washington a few days ago, says he is ready to step out whenever Mr. McAdoo calls on him to do so. MR. Z. W. WHITEHEAD CHOSEN.

Elected Vice President of National Conservation Congress.

Wilmington delegates to the annual meeting of the National Conservation Congress, in session the past week in Washington, have returned to the city. Included in the delegation were Editor Z. W. Whitehead, of the Southern Lumber Journal and the Carolina Fruit and Tucker's Journal; Mr. Hugh MacRae, and Mr. B. F. Keith, collector of customs.

Mr. Whitehead was elected vice president of the Congress for North Carolina and this choice, his friends regard as a very wise one. This organization is composed of the leading business men and captains of industry in the United States, and it goes without saying that no man in this section is better acquainted and more familiar with the industrial, commercial, agricultural and financial interests in this State and the South than Mr. Whitehead.

Mr. Whitehead is acknowledged authority on everything pertaining to lumber and forest products, agriculture and trucking, manufacturing, etc., and his friends feel certain that he will truly and correctly represent North Carolina and the South in the office which has just been given to him.

With many years experience and active identification with large financial and industrial interests, Mr. Whitehead's field of operations and exploitations have afforded him direct insight to the many and varied resources and possibilities of North Carolina and the whole Southern country. COTTON MARKET GOES LOWER

Under More or Less General Selling, Which Appeared to be Inspired by Talk of An Adequate Crop Following Report.

New York, November 22.—The cotton market was lower today under more or less general selling, which appeared to be inspired by the talk of an adequate crop following the ginning report and an unfavorable view of general trade conditions. The close was barely steady at a net decline of 12 to 20 points.

The opening was steadied by a renewal of the trade buying which had been largely responsible for yesterday's rally. Support was not as active as on the previous day, however, and first prices were five to eight points lower. An unsettled labor situation, not only in Fall River, but in other trades, and reports that the government warehouses in India were full of cotton goods, seemed to promote considerable selling for short account, while there also was heavy liquidation under which active months soon showed net losses of 14 to 18 points.

This break was followed by slight rallies on covering for over the week-end, but the market remained very nervous reaching the lowest point at the close under continued liquidation and scattered selling, accompanied by very bearish talk around the ring. Local bulls contend that the fixing of prices on old contracts by spinners at the present level, indicates a fair working margin but some of the local spot people report very little fresh business, and it was predicted by local statisticians today that the weekly reports on spinners' takings will compare more bearishly with last year in the near futre.

These predictions were probably based partly upon the falling off in the export movement, while at this time last year cotton was going out of sight very rapidly, takings for the week ending December 6th, last, being the views of some of the larger Western heaviest on record. The weekly redry goods distributors showed continued optimism, but Fall River sales for the week were estimated at only 70,000 pieces, against 270,000 for the same week last year.

Spot cotton, quiet. Middling uplands, 13.50; do. gulf, 13.75; no sales.

WEEKLY COTTON REPORT

Market Had a Tendency to Sag This Week Under Liquidation by the Long Interest and Short Selling.

New Orleans, Nov. 22.—The cotton market had a tendency to sag this week under liquidation by the long interest and short selling from the bear element, which at times was rather aggressive. The net results were a decline of 38 to 44 points. The high prices were made on Monday and the low prices on Saturday. At the highest the trading months were 4 to 7 points over last week's close; at the lowest they were 39 to 45 points. The range was 46 to 49 points.

Much of the liquidation of the early part of the week was due to bearish estimates of the ginning figures issued Friday by the census bureau.

These reports caused much long cotton to be thrown on the market. While the census figures of 10,434,387 bales were just about what the trade as a whole looked for, they were followed by moderately heavy selling which put prices to new low levels for the week. At the end of the week bulls said that the market was oversold and claimed that the technical position was sounder than for a long time.

At times there were many reports of an easier spot situation, bearish traders claiming that offerings, especially of the low grades, were very liberal, and that, in some instances, cotton was being pressed for sale. It was claimed that there was no great demand, except for the better grades, which are growing sacrcer. Against the arguments of no spot demand of late, bulls pointed out that mill takings for the week were 460,000 bales against 478,000 this week last year. They also called attention to the fact that exports thus far this season amount to 3,480,535 bales against 3,380,049 a year ago. Attention also was directed to sales of spots in the Liverpool market for the week of 57,000 bales against 41,000 this week last year.

Spots lost one-quarter of a cent, middling closing at 13 1-16 against 13 5-16 last week, and 12 3-8 this week last year. Sales on the spot amounted to 7,768 bales against 6,946 last week and 6,440 this week last year. Sales to arrive amounted to 11,760 bales against 8,702 last week and 8,155 this week last year.

STOCK MARKET COLORLESS

Price Changes Among Active Stocks Were Trivial—Amount of Business Very Small—Bank Statement Disappoints.

New York, Nov. 22.—Today's trading on the stock market was as colorless as in the preceding sessions this week and price changes among active stocks were trivial. The amount of business was only about 50,000 shares.

The market appeared impervious to adverse factors. As the Mexican situation remains without significant change, less attention is being paid to its bearing on prices. London's influence was neutral owing to the irregular course of American stocks abroad and absence of foreign trading here.

The weekly reviews of trade told of indications of curtailment in various lines. Another disturbing feature was the acute weakness of various industrial stocks, of which Mexican Petroleum was most conspicuous. This stock broke 2 1-2 to within a fraction of its lowest record, but subsequently rallied.

The apparent indifference of the market was ascribed to the stability which it derived from the short interest built up recently. The close showed no definite tendency.

The bank statement was disappointing. There was an actual loss of $1,277,000. Loans increased $21,744,000 which presumably reflected the financing of the week and the net result was to cut down the surplus by over $6,000,000.

Bonds were easy. Total sales par value $510,000. United States bonds unchanged on call for the week. Total stocks sales 51,100 shares, including C. & O. 100; Lehigh Valley 600; S. A. L. 200; Southern 2,000; Tenn. Copper 100; U. S. Steel 11,400.

WEEKLY FINANCIAL.

Stock Dealings Were the Smallest of the Season.

New York, Nov. 22.—The week's stock market dealings were the smallest at this season for a decade. Price changes were irregular and unchanged.

Money worked easier, but application for capital was confined to absolute necessities. The quick success of a sale of bonds guaranteed by the Pennsylvania and New Haven indicated a tendency toward important investments.

Steel and copper prices declined again and working forces at steel mills were reduced. Heavy shipments of currency to New York indicated trade contraction. Customs payments failed to show expansions of imports under the new tariff. Increased estimates of the cotton crop resulted from the ginning figures.

GIVE VICTIMS A CHANCE.

To the Editor of The Star:

If you have space to give to the following it might help both the gentlemen in their opinion.

In the case of Wm. Crownstream vs. Consumer.

Opinion by one of the Victims at Large.

Case dismissed as both are right in their arguments but do not go deep enough.

Briefly—Being in a position of dual capacity, that of buyer from the retail merchant and familiar with the prices both consumer and merchant pay, I beg to place the reason partly on the middleman. That much mis-rated but entirely superfluous individual. Meredith's quotations are correct, as applied to their markets but—the merchant buys from or rather through (heavy Roman please) a middleman. Allow me to give his argument:

"We buy eggs in the time of plenty from eight to fifteen cents per dozen, and place them in storage, taking them out as needed. Without our aid the people could not be half supplied when eggs are scarce."

Good! He buys eggs when they are plentiful and puts them in storage (paying for that privilege of course) so that we poor mortals may have a taste of the fruits of the gods when the hens are "off." Now, he naturally is not in business for his health and, therefore, makes a little profit (about five cents per dozen) over the original cost and as he must expend a certain amount of his money in payment for the privilege of storing these eggs he must add a little to that (say three cents a dozen and two cents for freight), and the eggs that were originally bought for ten cents have had ten cents added by the middleman and about eight cents cost (and profit) by the storage house, all of which the merchant pays, or 28 cents total. He in turn, must make some profit so that he may live, pay running expenses and taxes, etc., which cuts his profits to about 12 1-2 per cent. if, (again heavy Roman) all his bills are paid.

I do not claim my figures to be exact, but close enough for the sake of argument. As with eggs so with all other products. Let our merchants contract with the original producers, get together on freight rates and give the victims a chance to live.

ONE OF THE VICTIMS.

PERTINENT QUESTIONS ASKED.

"Consumer" Makes Reply to Mr. Crownstream on Retail Prices.

Editor Star: After a careful reading of Mr. Crownstream's letter in Saturday's Star entitled "The Price of Commodities," "Consumer" wishes to inquire if it is true that Meredith's quotations are misleading. If true, why are they published by the local newspapers and where can a consumer learn the true wholesale prices?

If the legal measure of a bushel is 32 quarts, wny should a merchant accept less? Does he not know that there are State laws governing weights and measures? If he buys less than 32 quarts for a bushel, how many quarts does he sell to a consumer for a peck?

Does Mr. Crownstream not know to sell rotten or unwholesome food is an indictable offense? If not, let him read Section 196 of the revised city ordinances. Did the responsible firm from whom he purchases reimburse him for the loss or was the cost of the rotten potatoes added to the price the Consumer pays? The Consumer does not live fast nor is he rich, but he pays cash for all his food. If it is true that he has to pay high prices because rich customers and others allow their bills to run from three to 12 months would he not be justified in demanding a discount for cash such as wholesale merchants give retail merchants for cash? The Consumer also pays taxes and insurance, house rent, lights, fuel, telephone, ice, donations, etc.

He regrets that other duties prevent his accepting the invitation to spend an interesting Monday with Mr. Crownstream. "CONSUMER."

DAUGHTER OF GEN. SHERMAN.

Mrs. M. S. Fitch Dies at Her Home in Gulfport, Miss.

Gulfport, Miss., Nov. 22.—Mrs. Minnie Sherman Fitch, wife of Lieut. Thomas W. Fitch, U. S. N., and daughter of Gen. William T. Sherman, died here today at the age of 62 years. She was the editor and publisher of her father's letters and memoirs. President Grant attended her wedding at St. Aloysius church, Washington, D. C., October, 1874. She is survived by two sons, W. S. Fitch, Gulfport, Miss.; T. W. Fitch, Pittsburg; two daughters, Miss Eleanor Fitch, Gulfport; Mrs. Mary Sherman Olmstead, Bethlehem, Pa.; a brother, Rev. Thomas E. Sherman, S. J., Marquette, Mich.; and a sister, Mrs. Ella Thackery, wife of the United States consul general at Paris.

The funeral will take place Tuesday at St. Louis, where the body will be buried beside that of Gen. Sherman.

IN HIS OWN DEFENSE.

Defendant on Stand Denies He Assaulted Young Woman.

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 22.—E. Graham Wilson, farmer and horse man, took the stand in his own defense today against the charge that he attacked Miss Kate Turner, a guest at the Wilson home last June 6th. Mrs. Wilson, wife of the accused, testified in her husband's defense. Wilson related his version of the alleged attack, declaring he had misled his wife purposely as to the incidents of the day. He swore any relations that might have occurred were with the consent of the plaintiff and denied committing an assault. Wilson was nervous during cross examamination. He declared many minor statements made by Miss Turner in connection with the affair were false. Mrs. Wilson said Miss Turner's face was flushed and her hat disarranged when she returned from the drive. At 5 o'clock the court adjourned until Monday forenoon when the defense is expected to close its case.

Chicago, November 22.—The jury to try Otto Manzar-Adust-Hanish, leader of the Mazadabnan Sun Worshippers cult, charged with sending objectional matter by express, was completed today and adjournment taken until Monday.

The commission appointed by Governor Craig to hear the protest of the railroads against the application of the rates written in the Justice inter-State rate bill is a remarkable one in that not only is there not a politician in it, but not a man who took any part in the recent agitation over rail road rates. But although the personnel of the commission will doubtless surprise many people, we believe that the longer they consider the matter the more firmly will they be convinced that the Governor has discharged his difficult duty with admirable wisdom. A scholar, a jurist and a business man at first sight appear to be a strange combination to decide a question of freight rates; but come to think about it, what better combination could be asked.—Greensboro News.

The Independent Woman

The woman of today knows more about business than her Mother did and if the agitation for Women's Rights did nothing more than it has already accomplished, it would have been a good thing. It has made women think, made them more dependable in business and made them more self-reliant.

Most women at the head of households now pay all bills by check. They have learned that it is the business-like way to handle money. We have made special provision to care for our women depositors and both Bank Book and Check Books of proper size for the hand bag have been provided. Your account will be welcome.

TEACHERS MEET THIS WEEK

North Carolina Assembly in Raleigh Wednesday to Saturday—Governor Craig and Noted Educators Are to be Among the Speakers.

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 22.—The programme of the thirtieth annual session of the North Carolina Teachers' Assembly, to be held in Raleigh, November 26-29, which has been sent out to the teachers of the State by Secretary E. E. Sams, shows that great things in the way of inspiration, enlightenment, and information are in store for all who may be able to attend.

A perusal of the mere list of names of the speakers on the programme of only the general sessions shows that these meetings alone would more than repay for his trip to Raleigh the teacher from seaboard Currituck, or from farthest Cherokee. The first session will be addressed by Governor Locke Craig, State Superintendent J. Y. Joyner, Josiah William Bailey, and President J. D. Eggleston of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, former State Superintendent of Virginia, and one of the greatest authorities on rural education in the country.

On Thursday evening, November 27th, the president's annual address will be delivered by A. C. Reynolds, of the Cullowhee Normal and Industrial School, who is this year president of the Assembly, and it will be a plea for a professional body of teachers for North Carolina and suggestions as to how to secure this professionalization. This evening will be further featured by an address on the Montessori Method, by Dr. William Heard Kilpatrick, professor in the Teachers' College, Columbia University.

The Friday evening address will be delivered by E. C. Branson, of the Georgia State Normal School, who created such enthusiasm at the State University some time ago, organizing "Know Your Home County" clubs. He will give the teachers at the Assembly this same doctrine of the scientific surveying of the educational, economic and sociological conditions of communities for fundamental information on which to base uplift work. Following his address will be the ceremony of the presentation to the State by the Assembly of a marble bust of Calvin H. Wiley, the address of presentation to be made by Acting President E. K. Graham, of the State University, and the acceptance to be by the Secretary of State, J. Bryan Grimes.

Thursday, at noon, a Thanksgiving service will be held in the Raleigh Auditorium, the sermon preached by the Rev. Neal L. Anderson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Winston-Salem.

On Friday afternoon, as a feature of the North Carolina Conference on Mental Hygiene, held in connection with the Assembly, Dr. Adolph Myers of the Henry Phippes Institute of Psychiatry, Johns Hopkins Hospital, will speak on the subject, "Some Common Misunderstandings About State Hospitals, and the Way to Make Them Unnecessary."

For Friday evening, following the general session, a special musical programme has been prepared for the entertainment of the members of the Assembly by the Raleigh Merchants' Association.

Besides the universal interest among the teachers which attaches to these general meetings, there are to be held departmental sessions for every different phase of work of the teaching profession, offering technical programmes which will appeal to every class of teacher.

The Assembly is made up of eight allied organizations: The Association of Primary Teachers, Association of Grammar Grade Teachers, Association of County Superintendents, Association of City Superintendents, Association of Academies and Colleges, Association of High School Teachers and Principals. Each of these associations has prepared a splendid programme, dealing technically with the specific problems of its members, which will be of the greatest practical value to those who attend.

Miss Ella V. Dobbs, of the Department of Manual Training of the University of Missouri, will meet with the Primary and Kindergarten departments, and Mr. Richard T. Wyche, editor of the National Story-Tellers' Magazine, will address the Kindergarten section on story-telling. Besides these, many of the most prominent educators of this State will address the various associations.

A. A. A. IN RICHMOND.

Historic Southern City Preparing a Royal Entertainment.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

New York, November 22.—Historic Richmond is preparing for the annual meeting of the American Automobile Association, to be held December 1st, 2nd and 3rd, in a manner which insures that the twelfth yearly gathering of the National organization of motor car users will be the most notable in its history.

President Preston Belvin, of the Virginia State Automobile Association, and President-elect C. E. Batkins, of the Richmond club, are chairman and vice chairman, respectively, of the local committee of arrangements which intend that the visitors shall see the Southern city at its best.

In the official call that has gone forth to the A. A. A. clubs and members generally, President Laurens Enos directs attention to the fact that the accredited delegates may be accompanied by as many members of clubs as can respond to the "On to Richmond" call so insistently set forth by the Virginians. Says President Enos: "I am confident this visit to the Southland will be thoroughly enjoyable, for Richmond's historic surroundings and well known hospitality, in which your wives and daughters are cordially invited to participate, will supply a combination of rare promise and certain fulfillment."

Monday will be devoted to morning and afternoon business sessions, including the reading of the annual reports, appointment of the nominating committee, and addresses relating to the most important work of the association. On Wednesday morning there will be the election of officers and the consideration of new business.

On Monday evening an entertainment of a distinctly Southern character will be provided by the Richmond committee. Tuesday will be given over to seeing Richmond and vicinity, with the annual banquet that night at the Jefferson Hotel, in which the business meetings will also take place.

Speakers of prominence at the banquet will include Governor Mann, Governor-elect Stewart, Mayor Ainsley and Henry W. Anderson whose talks on Federal Aid in highways progress have always been enthusiastically received. All ex-presidents of the A. A. A.—Chase, Lee, Hotchkiss, Speare and Hooper—will be given an opportunity to participate in the rapid-fire oratory.

NOT SO "DRY" NOW.

Express Company Ignores Morehead's Local Prohibition Law.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Kinston, N. C., Nov. 22.—The "driest" point in Eastern Carolina for several weeks, Morehead City, has again become normal prohibition territory, and the lid in the town now is on no tighter than in other places in the State. Representative C. S. Wallace, Carteret county's member of the House, secured the passage of a law in the Legislature prohibiting common carriers from delivering liquor in Morehead township.

The Southern Express Company for a time abided by the law, but now, according to a report from Morehead City, its agent has been instructed to deliver intoxicants at the local office as formerly. Recently residents of the town have had to get shipments of spirits from the express offices at Beaufort and Newport, an inconvenient procedure for the thirsty ones.

UNCLE SAM. SPEED MANIAC

Government Auto Trucks Cost Many Lives in New York — Safeguard Travelers — "Shoestring Bill" Youngest Life-Saver.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

New York, Nov. 22.—The most dangerous of all auto. speeders in New York's thoroughfares is none other than our own "Uncle Sam," as is shown by the records for the past ten months. During that period 231 persons were killed by automobiles in the greater city, against a total of 234 for the twelve months of 1912.

Ten of these were run over by United States mail trucks, which are exempted from the provisions of the new fifteen-mile speed law. Mail-carrying auto. trucks are not the only official offenders, however, in the matter of fast and reckless driving. The running of fire department apparatus and wagons, when not on their way to fires, is the subject of many complaints, as also is the disregard shown for the rights of pedestrians by police department chauffeurs, whom the traffic squad evidently has no power to curb. A local league for the protection of human life is moving for the establishment of a special police bureau with power to sift all automobile accidents and place blame where it belongs, and otherwise combat this growing menace to the safety of the city's streets. For the 231 killings of the current year not one machine operator has been sent to prison as an example to others.

Safeguarding travelers, particularly women and girls, who by reason of inexperience or ignorance or illness, may need assistance, is the purpose of the Travelers' Aid Society, which has recently begun operations in New York. Women representatives who speak many languages meet vessels and trains, and extend to inexperienced and confused newcomers whatever of information, advice, guidance and protection may seem proper. Few people are aware of the extent to which immigrants, particularly, but country folk as well, are victimized by sharpers who, by hook or crook, separate the unwary from their money and other possessions, and by agents of disorderly houses always to be found on incoming boats and trains, seeking to ensnare thousands of young women who yearly come to the metropolis for a livelihood. Another feature of the society's work is its special investigation of inducements offered to women and girls to come here, many being lured by false pretenses. No charges are made for any service rendered by this society, which was organized by prominent and wealthy social workers, and is supported entirely by voluntary contributions. Results from the service are already so gratifying that within a year the organization will be national in scope, with active branches in all the principal cities.

Gotham's most mysterious character, perhaps, is "Shotstring Bill," who makes his headquarters around the back stoop of the New York Stock Exchange, in the narrow alley—New street—where one rubs elbows with bnakers, brokers, messengers, tipsters and embarrassed speculators. Every day, rain or shine, "Shoestring Bill" may be found thereabout, carrying on some sort of a trade—maybe lending money to a messenger boy or disposing of a costly diamond. He buys and sells anything and everything; will trade in anything from a penknife to a government bond; will sell you a second-hand typewriter and take in exchange cash, jewelry, clothing, stock, or a promise to pay. On his most prosperous day, recently, he negotiated a fountain pen, two gold watches, six oil shares, a fur overcoat, a Maltese terrier, and a gold mine option. Though pitied as a crazy beggar by the unknowing passer, "Bill" is credited with the ownership of considerable realty, including some large tenements. Old-timers in Wall Street who recall his first appearance there thirty years ago as a vender of shoe strings and trinkets, say his real name is William Schwartz. He is supposed to live somewhere in the shadow of the Brooklyn Bridge. Whether he is married is a mystery. He quotes Socrates, Bacon, Emerson and Jefferson, and writes to the papers on philosophical and economic topics. "I spend my days listening to the chimes of Trinity and my nights communing with Goethe, Hugo and Shakespeare," says mysterious "Shoestring Bill."

There are two points in Gotham where political campaigning waxes warm after election as well as during the stirring times before. At the base of the Ben Franklin statue in Printing House Square around midday it is not unusual to see four or even five, speakers holding forth in behalf of as many parties or "isms," each with fifty or more attentive listeners. And any clement evening one may have his choice of several brands of soap box oratory at the four corners of Seventh avenue and 125th street—Harlem's Bughouse Corners—where as many as eight meetings in progress at one time have been noted. Prior to elections there vantage points are sought and fought for by the regular parties, also, but the passing of election day does not halt the campaigns of the suffragists, prohibitionists, socialists of various brands, and their respective "antis." Occasionally the rivalry for places or animosity between "pros" and "antis" reaches white heat, but usually the meetings are very orderly and, aside from good-natured "joshing" there is little disturbance.

Fourteen-year-old Regina Ford, a pretty New York lassie, is probably the world's youngest habitual life-saver. She has just been awarded a Carnegie hero medal, together with a cash prize of $2,000, for her sensational and daring rescue in Jamaica Bay last August of a young woman who fell from a float and was being swept away by a swift and treacherous tide. Miss Ford unhesitatingly plunged into the water, though fully clad, and managed to reach the helpless one barely in time, as it took more than two hours to revive her. Despite her youth, Miss Ford is credited with two other rescues—one her brother, and the other a playmate.

HEAVY BREAKS AT KINSTON.

One Day's Tobacco Sales Amount to 200,000 Pounds.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Kinston, N. C., Nov. 22.—Tobacco breaks on the local market yesterday and today resembled those of the days in mid-season. The warehouses were scenes of more activity than at any time during the month. Yesterday 200,000 pounds were sold. Fine weather is largely responsible for the heavy breaks. The quality of the offering was good, and prices were said to have been about the strongest for the whole season.

There is little more tobacco to be marketed in this section, it is believed, and before the middle of December probably the entire crop will be sold. The market will close on December 19th. The crop this season has been of a superior order as a whole in this vicinity. W. A. Darden, of Greene county, produced a record-breaking leaf of the golden product from a quantity that sold for 25 cents a pound. The leaf was 32 1-2 inches in length.

While the State has lost considerable by over charges in freight rates, its is to be doubled if either Judge Clark or Governor Craig know anything about the exact figures.—Durham Herald.

Conservation experts from all sections of the United States and Canada gathered in Washington, the first of the past week and attended the fifth National Conservation Congress.

GOSSIP OF FOREIGH CAPITALS

Mistress Of The Robe In London—Eugenics in Denmark—Prohibition In Iceland—in Gay Paris—Other Interesting Notes

(By Associated Press.)

London, Nov. 22.—The present Liberal Government has been compelled to confer the appointment of Mistress of the Robes to the Queen, in former years considered highly political, on a political opponent in the person of the Duchess of Devonshire.

By precedent this post must go to a Duchess, but as there are no Liberal Dukes or Duchesses, it has of necessity for years fallen to those of the other political faith. The husband of the present Mistress of the Robes, although coming from an old Liberal family, which left the party over Gladstone's Home Rule policy and nearly came back to it when the Unionists adopted Joseph Chamberlain's policy of tariff reform, is one of the stalwarts of the present opposition. However, the Liberals have nothing to fear in these days of constitutional monarchs.

In the old days, when Queens really ruled, and even in the early days of Victoria's reign, the Mistress of the Robes was an important personage, and it was considered necessary that she should be of the same political party as the Government of the day, so that she might bring the right kind of influence to bear on the sovereign. Now, however, her chief duty is to stand beside the Queen at state functions, and control the Maids of Honor.

Another Tory Duchess, Her Grace of Portland, holds the position of Mistress of the Robes to Queen-Mother Alexandra, but her position is of course even less important than that of the Duchess of Devonshire's. Her place in the political world, however, is just as great if not greater. At the Duke's town house in Grosvenor Square and at Welbeck Abbey, his magnificent country seat, the Duchess gives entertainments of the greatest magnificence, and many of the official Unionist receptions are given by her. These latter are somewhat democratic, but on other occasions only the most exclusive gain admittance.

THANKSGIVING WEEK At The BIJOU

The Modern Picture Show

Differs greatly from what it formerly was. Time was, and not so long ago, that no house knew what was going to be given them more than a day in advance, and were forced to show just any old thing that came along. But at present the Bijou Theatre selects their entire week's programme in advance, after carefully looking over everything offered by the different film manufacturers.

For the week opening tomorrow, the Bijou will have on an elaborate Holiday-Week Programme Every Day. Besides the three Warner features, the programme will include some of the very latest and best releases of the big companies, well known to all, every one of which has been specially chosen by the management.

Three More Warner Features will supplement the Big Thanksgiving Week Bill, which the management has prepared for its patrons, as follows:

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 24th.

"The Living Corpse"

A dramatic and inspiring Warner feature. A literary gem in motion pictures, in four parts. "The Living Corpse" was written in the year 1900, at Moscow, on the estate of Count Leo Tolstoi's brother, and at Yasnaya Polyana, Tolstoi's own estate. It is an enthralling story—one of the best and most extensively read—and the pictorial version in four parts, makes one of the greatest features ever presented to moving picture patrons. It is a photoplay that will appeal to those who appreciate magnificent acting, perfect photograph and powerful plot. It enables everyone to become familiar with the inspiring philosophy of Tolstoi, the famous Russian Sage.

"Back to Life"

A powerful and thrilling drama of Society Life, by the Warner Feature Photoplay Actors, in three parts. This drama of modern-day society life has been staged with the utmost care, and no expense has been spared to get a superb cast of stars. The outdoor scenes are staged in the grounds surrounding the country mansion of one of New York's multi-millionaires, and are, indeed, beautiful. It is one of those splendidly done photoplays that brings a lump to the throat and a mist to the eyes. Full of powerful dramatic situations, and there is action in every foot.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 28th.

"In the Shadows"

The thousands who saw Miss Gene Gauntier in that magnificent masterpiece, "In the Clutch of the Ku Klux Klan," will be delighted to learn that she will be featured again in this Warner Feature, to be put on next Friday, matinee and night. This will be a very strong and gripping dramatic production, full of heart throbs and big climaxes, presented by the Warner all-star cast. You will like it. There are many scenes thrilling enough to make you grip your chair unconsciously.

THE NEW PIANO

The Bijou management has purchased a new piano, which will be one of the very finest in the South, costing $3,500. It is ten feet in height, seven feet wide, and six feet deep, and has already been shipped from the factory.

THEATRICAL

Wednesday Matinee and Night, Negro Players of America — Thursday (Thanksgiving), Matinee and Night—Friday and Saturday, "Quo Vadis."

This is going to be one of the banner weeks of the Wilmington theatrical season of 1913-14. It will offer almost a solid week of attractions, and they will be of the very best in their respective lines. Wednesday night what is known as the Negro Players of America, the best and most noted colored musical attraction in the world, will be offered, and as a Thanksgiving Day attraction the Academy will proudly present the well known actor, Norman Hackett, who will appear in a dramatization of one of O. Henry's celebrated stories, and this will naturally add much interest, as O. Henry was a North Carolinian, and part of the proceeds will go to the fund being raised for a monument to O. Henry's memory. Of course, being a holiday, there will be two performances, matinee and night.

Friday and Saturday the sensational moving pictures of "Quo Vadis" will be offered, opening with a matinee Friday afternoon.

Best Colored Show of All.

Rogers & Creamer's Negro Players of America, which comes to the Academy Wednesday, matinee and night, is a company formed to produce playlets of real negro life of today, yesterday and tomorrow. It seems that the only hope for the negro to come back in the show business is through his own people, and in order to do this, he must write plays that will have real human interest. Playlets that will show that the negro can love, hate and display the same kind of sentiment that other people feel—in fact, to show that we have hearts. There will, of course, be original songs, dances and comedy, but with it all, little touches of pathos here and there.

This company of negro players, it is hoped, will be the means of bringing to the stage young blood with talent; young people who have aspired for such, but have never had an opportunity. This company is appealing to these young people for the support of the first institution of its kind put before the public.

The cast will include many names well known in the show business.

Seats on sale tomorrow at J. Hicks Bunting's drug store.

Hackett Thanksgiving.

The Academy of Music will, on Thanksgiving Day, matinee and night, offer its patrons a decided dramatic treat, when that popular young actor, Norman Hackett, will be seen in his latest success, "A Double Deceiver." This play is founded on O. Henry's famous story, "A Double-Dyed Deceiver," adapted for stage use by Prof. Donald C. Stuart, of Princeton University. This play has been received with most generous patronage and complimentary criticism wherever presented and Manager Comes is decidedly pleased over having secured Mr. Hackett and his excellent company for this engagement. The locale of the play is laid in Texas and South America, which naturally admits of handsome stage settings, thrilling situations and distinctive character creations, all of which have received most careful attention by the producers, so it is claimed. Mr. Hackett's company is headed by Herbert Fortier, who has been seen in support of Viola Allen, Sothern-Marlow, Catherine Countiss and other prominent stars, and Marie Ilka Diehl, late of the Frohman forces is the pretty senorita about which much of the action of the play is woven. Mr. Hackett plays the part of a dashing American soldier of fortune, a part well adapted to his personality.

Through an arrangement made between Manager Comes and Mr. Hackett, a liberal percentage of the receipts of the Wilmington engagement will be turned over to Prof. J. J. Blair, to be devoted to the O. Henry Memorial Fund, which is being raised by popular subscription to place a bronze bust of the distinguished North Carolina author in the State Capitol at Raleigh. Much interest in the engagement is aroused among the various literary clubs of the city. Seats will be on sale Tuesday morning.

"Quo Vadis" for the Week-end.

The moment of most genuine dramatic power and suspense in George Kleine's truly wonderful photo-drama "Quo Vadis" which is to be presented at the Academy Friday and Saturday of this week, with a special matinee each day, occurs in the third act or seventh reel, when the Christians are about to be sacrificed for their alleged crime of the burning of Rome.

The scene shows the arena of the famous Coliseum—on all sides are the great tiers of seats filled with the patricians and citizens of Rome out for a holiday, eager to witness the chariot races, the gladiator combats, the torture of the Christians and other features devised by the cruel heart of Nero for their pleasure and sport. In the foreground is a trap door with a huge chain which leads outside of the frame of the picture. Far off the little group of Christians kneel upon the sands, praying and stricken with terror. The pitiless soldiers who have driven them into the arena from their cells move off to places of safety. Nero leans over the high balustrade of the imperial box gloating at their suffering. Then the trap door begins to rise.

Everyone knows what is about to happen. The first lion who slips out of the opening is no surprise, yet there is a thrill that passes over the audience, and a shudder, and the moment is full of suspense. More lions follow, many lions, all lean and hungry looking brutes.

The scene shifts to a close view of the kneeling Christians. The women clasp their children to their breast and raise their eyes in supplication to Heaven. The lions approach them, coming faster and faster. The scene shifts again to the imperial box. Nero revels in the spectacular and urges his guests to lose no detail, the love-lorn Vinitius awaits in trembling fear the fate of his beloved Lygia; the treacherous Chilo revolts at the outcome of his own villainy and faints at the sight, and the thousands of citizens and nobled look on with bated breath.

Swell Bills at the Grand.

The swellest of the swell is the nature of the bills being presented each day at the cozy, handsome Grand Theatre, to the great delectation of the Wilmington amusement public, who knowing a good thing never fail to crowd this superb place of high-class entertainment of low admission figure—5 cents. The Grand will inaugurate the week tomorrow with an exceptionally clever bill; one which will appeal with power to every taste. It will be headed by Edison's "A Daughter of the Wilderness," which is a story of the Canadian woods, and it will thrill from start to finish. A startling scene is when the backwoodsman leaves a young American, the subject of his wrath, to the mercy of hungry wolves.

"Her Hour," Pathe's greatest dramatic, is also a star tomorrow. It tells of a young woman who marries a cruel man. He wanders away from home, loses his memory, and she thinks him dead. She marries again. What follows is decidedly dramatic, though there is a happy ending.

Lubin will also make a strong dramatic offering in "Her First Offense." It is a pathetic story of how a sister forges a check to raise money for her consumptive brother. The end in this, too, is bright.

Big Week at the Bijou.

Greatness in the way of moving pictures continues for the people of Wilmington. The Bijou this week will again do the extraordinary and present another galaxy of superb costly Warner features, besides the pick of what is best in all other films. The Bijou is placed at big extra expense in order to make these wonderful offerings, but it is being fully repaid, not only by capacity business, but by enthusiastic words of praise from every amusement-lover who visits the favorite theatre. Notwithstanding the additional heavy expense the same old tiny price of admission, 5 cents, afternoon and night, is being maintained.

The Bijou will open the new week tomorrow with a swell bill, headed, of course, by a brilliant Warner feature, in four giant sized reels. Think of that. This feature will be something decidedly out of the ordinary even for a Warner. It will be "The Living Corpse," which is an adaptation and picturization of the famous drama by Count Tolstoi. It has truly been heralded as a literary gem in motion. It is a great story of Russian life, thrilling throughout and with most intense action. It is a most elaborate production, requiring hundreds and hundreds of people, and the principal roles are enacted by distinguished artists. There will be other features tomorrow, making this Monday the greatest in Bijou history.

ORDERS TO CLERKS.

Sent Out by Corporation Commission Under Act of 1913.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 22.—A sweeping order has been issued by the Corporation Commission to the clerks of the courts for all the counties for the filing of a complete list of all wills, etc. made or recorded during the past five years, together with other information related, this being for the purpose of aiding the commission in the collection of the inheritance tax, as required by law.

The revenue act of 1913 contains the following pointed instructions to every clerk of the court in the State a copy of which has been sent this week to all the clerks.

"The clerk of the Superior Court of each county shall on the first Monday in December, 1913, make a report under oath, to the State tax commission, showing the names and addresses of all executors, administrators, and trustees of estates who have qualified in his county during the preceding five years; the estimated value of each estate and which of them have been settled, together with the value of the property and assets paid over to legatees and distributees, the names of the heirs-at-law * * *

"The said clerk shall also embrace in said report the names of all persons who have died leaving wills * * * together with the estimated value of the estate devised. The clerk shall annually thereafter on the first Monday in December make like reports to the State tax commission for the preceding year; provided, that in making such reports the clerk of the court shall be allowed by the board of county commissioners a fee of 10 cents for each copy sheet thereof."

Frank P. Glass, editor of the Birmingham News and president of the Montgomery Advertiser, was Monday appointed U. S. Senator by Gov. O'Neal, to succeed the late Senator Johnson, of Alabama.

Finally, we got Doan's Kidney Pills at Bellamy's drug store and the results of their use were astounding. The secretions from my kidneys were cleared and the pain and backache left. ALFALFA GROWING IN THE SOUTHWEST.

By Jas. N. Benton, Secretary of Rock Hill, S. C., Chamber of Commerce.

A decade ago it was not thought that alfalfa could be successfully grown in the Southeast. During that time, however, agricultural conditions have changed considerably. In many places in the Southeast the farmers are most progressive and even though a large number of them have not increased their yields to any considerable extent, there are numbers who are now making two ears of corn where only one grew before, and as with corn this statement is true with regard to other crops. The same is true with regard to alfalfa. Progressive and wide-awake farmers have demonstrated to the satisfaction of even the most skeptical that alfalfa is being grown successfully. These farmers who are setting the pace in the production of alfalfa and other crops as well are also doubling the fertility of their soil.

The farmers around Rock Hill are setting the pace for alfalfa growing in the Southeast. Hundreds of acres of lands that were rapidly becoming barren are now covered with the verdant green. The humus and other necessary elements to produce satisfactory yields are being placed in the soil and while this soil enrichment is in progress tons and tons of alfalfa hay are being harvested.

While an unusually large profit is secured from alfalfa fields, it should be stated that a person cannot simply break the ground and scatter the seed and expect an abundant harvest to spring forth. The ground must first be carefully prepared and put in condition. Lime is a necessary element in growing cover crops and this must be applied. Also cover crops will not thrive unless the soil is filled with humus and bacteria-producing material, therefore it is necessary to inoculate this soil so that the nodules will quickly form on the roots of the growing plants. When alfalfa was first introduced in the Southeast none of these methods were employed and failure was the inevitable result.

With the government agents throughout the South preaching the doctrine of cover crops, inoculation and proper fertilization, there is every reason to believe that in a few more years eroded hill sides and barren lands will become the exception rather than the rule throughout the South, and that the farmers, or at least a majority of them, will see to it that all lands under cultivation will have cover crops during the Winter months, for they are fast arriving at the conclusion that not only will cover crops furnish a good deal of the rough feed they are now buying, but will at the same time enrich their soil, prevent erosion, and make much larger yields the coming year.

Knowing that the yields throughout the South must be increased materially per acre, and knowing that in order to accomplish this the soil must be enriched by providing humus and other elements so necessary to plant life, and believing that farmers in other sections would profit by knowing of their success with alfalfa here, the Rock Hill Alfalfa Growers' Association has gotten out a booklet which was published by the agricultural department of Winthrop college to be distributed throughout the country. This booklet was gotten up by Charles P. Weeks, of the head of the Department of Agriculture of Winthrop College, and secretary of the alfalfa association, and contains directions for successful growing of alfalfa.

It also contains letters from alfalfa growers in this section telling of their success and failures in planting this cover crop. This booklet has been circulated throughout the State, and many requests have been received from the Middle West for copies. In addition to other information it contains articles by A. G. Smith, of the United States Department of Agriculture, who is the leading spirit in alfalfa work in this State, and an article by W. W. Long, also of the United States Department of Agriculture, on various other crops. Copies of this booklet will be mailed to any person who desires one, on application to Prof. Weeks of Winthrop College.

With a view of cutting out this unnecessary expenditure of thousands of dollars annually a few alfalfa fields were planted, each person planting only a few acres at first and carefully studying this crop, which was then a new one to all. After mastering the knowledge necessary to growing the crop the acreage was increased, and a fair idea of the impetus will be gained when it is stated that several hundred acres were sown last year to alfalfa right around Rock Hill this Fall. The alfalfa association last year by co-operation was able to secure lime stone for around $2.25 per ton which was a little more than half the price the individual farmers had to pay. Fifteen hundred tons of limestone were shipped into Rock Hill during the Fall and Summer to be placed on the land sown to alfalfa. As a result of alfalfa growing this years thousands of dollars which here tofore have been sent out for hay will be kept at home, and in a few more years this county will produce enough hay to feed to live stock within its borders. Then, too, as the acreage in hay crops increases so will the number of cattle, horses and mules, especially the former. This will mean also that thousands of dollars which have gone to Western markets for beeves will be kept at home. Plans are already under way for the establishment of live stock breeding farms, and if the same success and secured in the growing of hay crops is attendant upon the new venture, it is only a matter of a few years before live stock can be shipped from this county into other sections less favorable to the growing of hay crops.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By Dr. David H. Reeder, Chicago, Illinois.

Typhoid Fever and its home treatment: At this season of the year there are nearly always more cases of typhoid fever than at any other time, and for that reason it is in order for the Home Health Club to discuss the subject again. With proper home treatment typhoid becomes one of the least dangerous of fevers. In the first place, the regular hydrotherapeutic treatment for fevers, as I have often described it, should be thoroughly carried out, and then the question of diet and massage will constitute all of the necessary remaining treatment, with the exception that enemas of about one-half gallon of warm water, containing one tablespoonful of salt, should be given every night until symptoms of diarrhoea appear; then either stop them or give every other night until the typhoid discharge appears, after which the principal danger is past.

Nearly every symptom of tympanities, hemorrhage, and fever can be almost entirely prevented by a strict adherence to the fasting principle. Absolutely no food, liquid or solid, should be given until the bowel discharge above referred to has appeared (usually about the seventh or ninth day,) and then it must be given in very small quantities and slowly increased. Give all the pure water the patient wants at any and all times.

It is well to remember that no accumulations, either of a healthful or unhealthful character, can take place in the system except by the consumption of food, water, or air. When the bright sunlight is admitted into our dwellings it reveals accumulations of dust, filth, or cobwebs, unmanifest but for the introduction of light. Just so when "the creature" we call a disease germ has found lodgment in our inner being, and forthwith kindles a big fire, we may know, but for the presence of material with which to build such fires, there would be no fever, because there is none of those materials upon which fever may feed, which are properly speaking waste or refuse from over feeding or improper living in some way. Now, although this interior fire causes intense suffering, and needs to be extinguished with all reasonable speed, yet a real service is being done for the afflicted one, because in accordance with some of the higher laws, nature is striving to "clean house" for us. We need, not only to secure relief from pain, but to cleanse and put into such order as will require no further renovating for a time, at least, these dwelling places where the dirt-loving bug found herself so much at home.

Opinions differ as to feeding the patient, but here common reason must grasp the helm. The tongue is the correct indicator of bodily needs; and until it is no longer coated, the patient needs no food of any kind. Pure water, and that alone, will suffice every need; though, if the sufferer decidedly wishes a very little, diluted sweet milk or fresh buttermilk may be given.

Is there reason in this prescription of food? Suppose yourself carrying a heavy burden for a long and weary distance; your strength at last gives away, and you sink down exhausted. The burden you have been carrying has caused your collapse, remember. Next, suppose some assistant is sent for, and upon arriving where you lie, at once prescribed that your burden be increased, and you at once arise and go forward with it. A heavy lash, such as is laid upon a poor, tired beast sometimes, might cause you to stagger along under such conditions; but, like him also, you might suddenly die from lack of breath. Would it not be wiser to lighten the burden you had borne, or if possible, remove it entirely, and allow you to rest? Well, the burden of waste, largely lay the load down utterly and leave it until all trace of the typhoid poison is gone or the mucous lining of the intestines no longer show evidence of its presence; there is no danger of starving. To the reader who does his own thinking—and members of the Home Health Club are generally such—these simple, sensible methods must appeal.

Night Sweats.

In some sicknesses the terrible night sweats will reduce the strength of the patient so rapidly that all efforts to build it up seems unavailing. Under the Home Health Club method of treatment a cure can usually be secured in one or two nights. I will let one of the club members tell of her experience.

"My husband was taken violently ill, and although we usually depend entirely upon the Home Health Club books for the treatment of everything I was so alarmed that I sent for our family physician. He is an honest as well as skilful physician, and when he said that the case was a doubtful one I was completely prostrated with grief. When the profuse night sweats began the doctor said he could do nothing to stop them more than he was doing. I asked him if I might try the Home Health Club treatment, and he reluctantly consented, saying he was afraid a severe cold might result. I prepared the solution according to the directions given in the Book of Lectures, and sponged only a part of the body that night, and the sweating was greatly reduced, no cold. Next night I sponged the entire body with it, and the night sweats were cured. The doctor was so well pleased that he copied the formula from my book for future use. The simple formula is as follows:

Common vinegar, one pint; common salt, one teaspoonful; common red pepper, one teaspoonful. Mix and set on the stove to slowly steep down to one-half, then sponge the body carefully and gently, under the bed covers, so as to prevent chilling. This should be applied on going to bed at night. I have never known it to fail."

Four motorcycle officers have been detailed in Des Moines, Ia., to conduct a campaign against speeding and muffler cut-outs.

The public safety department of Columbus, O., will purchase eight new motorcycles for use in the department.

Nature and a Woman's Work

have produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known. From the roots and herbs of the field, Lydia E. Pinkham, more than thirty years ago, gave to womankind a remedy for their peculiar ills which has proved more efficacious than any other combination of drugs ever compounded, and today Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is recognized from coast to coast as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

FEDERAL-CONTROL FORESTS.

Mr. Graves Speaks to National Conservation Congress in Washington.

Washington, November 22.—Henry S. Graves, U. S. Forester, spoke before the National Conservation Congress in session Wednesday, dwelling particularly on the present policies of the government in respect to the activities of the forest service. Referring to the attitude of the present administration, as to the so-called States' rights policy, which has advocated State instead of Federal control of forests; Mr. Graves says there is no thought of any change in the established system of Federal ownership and control. The forester spoke in part as follows:

"The Nation has an important stake in forestry. Here as in all other countries, the real development of forestry began when the government took up its practice. Even today some persons would leave the forests entirely to private owners, others insist that the public phases of forestry are altogether a State function and Federal activities in this field uncalled for. Those who hold this view are usually either lukewarm concerning the need for forest conservation or opposed to restricting private activities. Yet unrestricted private exploitation of forests is impossible if we are to continue to have the forests that the Nation needs.

"National responsibility in forestry is perfectly clear-cut. There need be no confusion with an equally clear-cut responsibility of the States. And as to private forestry little of value has so far been done that has not been an outcome of public action through State or Federal agencies, or both. The National work will always be the backbone of American forestry, not trenching on or interfering with State work or individual efforts but serving as a guarantee that National needs which individual States can not meet will be provided for on a National scale.

"Underlying the forestry problem are two fundamental considerations which should be emphasized and reiterated until thoroughly driven home. One is the public character of forestry. Both in the matter of a continued supply of forest products and in that of the conservation of water resources the public welfare is at stake. Secondly, stability of policy and permanence of ownership are essential to any successful attack on this great conservation problem.

"I am frequently asked as I travel about the country whether I am going to make important changes in forestry policy. I was asked that very often in 1910, when I first took office. I am asked it often this year. My answer is that what we are seeking is not changes but the development of a permanent public enterprise with consistent and stable policies. The National forests were set aside in the recognition that the bulk of these lands should be handled permanently under public protection and control.

"The aim of the present administration is not to overturn, but to take every possible step to increase efficiency of the organization, to adjust difficulties, and to advance as fast as possible the purposes for which the National forests were established. Secretary Houston recently said to me:

"'Establish permanent boundaries. Classify your lands; segregate the agricultural land and fix right limits for what is needed as protective and productive forests. Develop permanent policies based on full recognition of lasting public interests, and settle forestry practice fitted to the individual needs of each forest and locality. Study efficiency; make any changes that are not clearly called for in the public interest. Carry out your plans for the development and increasing use of the forests; but, above all, make each forest work for community upbuilding and local as well as general welfare. We must always have in mind the men and women who are building up a new country and laying the foundations for prosperous, thriving commonwealths. We must try to study their needs and see where and how the forests can help them. But we must not cease to guard effectively against the evils of private privilege and monopolistic control of resources now the property of the public.'"

FIRE SEASON BEGINS.

What the Government is Doing in Big Timbered Area.

The forest fire season has opened in the Southern Appalachians, according to reports sent to the forest service, with three small fires on the Unaka area in Eastern Tennessee. From now on until the Winter rains come, the service says, there will be danger of fires spreading in the dry leaves which the frost brings off the trees. At this time of year, however, there is no danger from lightning, so that the efforts of the forest officers can be concentrated to prevent fires spreading from the railroads, and to guard against the setting of fires by hunters and chestnut pickers, and by farmers who are careless in clearing up land.

The fire season in the Southern Appalachians is entirely different from that in the West. In the western mountains the long, dry Summer with its frequent lightning storms and little rain keeps the forest officers busy from the middle of May to September. In the Appalachians, on the other hand, the Summer season is usually accompanied by rains and there is little damage from lightning. The principal seasons of hazard are in the late Fall before the leaves have been rendered non-inflammable by rain and snow, and again in the not infrequent dry spells of early Spring between the time when the snow goes off and the green vegetation comes forth.

DOG GUARDED MASTER'S BODY

Charles E. Clough Found Dead In Woods Near Centreville

Centreville, Md., Dispatch,—With his hunting hound guarding the body and howling mournfully, Charles E. Clough a farmer, was found dead yesterday in a thicket near Barclay, Queen Anne's county. He had died from a gunshot wound, supposed to have been received accidentally.

On Monday afternoon Mr. Clough took his gun, went into the woods near his home. His wife, when she kissed him good-by, was the last person known to have seen him alive.

While on his way from school Andrew Clough, the 7-year-old son of the victim, saw his father's dog among the trees. He did not call the dog and hurried on home, where he found his mother worrying because her husband had not returned.

All during the night Mrs. Clough waited anxiously for his coming. As the night wore on she became hysterical. In the morning her son Andrew led her to the spot where he had seen the dog. There she found her husband's body lying face down with his left hand clutching his soft hat over the wound, in an apparent effort to stanch the flow of blood. The gun, with a shell discharged, was lying several yards behind him.

The dog must have perched upon his master's back and kept lonely vigil through the night. The animal resisted all efforts to remove him from his watch and snapped viciously at those who dragged him away.

SMALL CRAFT COMPLAIN.

At Burning of Old Wooden Ranges on Cape Fear.

Southport, N. C., Nov. 21.—The government having instituted its new system of Cape Fear river ranges, concrete structures and acetylene gas lights, it is now burning down all the old wooden stands on which the oil beacons stood, and which in day time were the ranges, as at night. This is causing great complaint among the small craft people, as the beacons burn to low water, and leave a dangerous obstruction when covered by the tide. These same small craft people say that the Cape Fear river is more and more shaped for big vessels only, that the channel is made a "ditch", with the sides, where once there was plenty of room for small craft, sail and motor, there is now continual obstructions. The small craft fleet is an important commercial factor and deserves both preservation and encouragement.

CORNELIUS HARNETT.

An Essay by Miss Mary Worth, 15, in State Normal Magazine for November.

The leading article in the November issue of the State Normal Magazine, the monthly publication of students of the State Normal and Industrial College at Greensboro, N. C., is an essay by Miss Mary Worth, of this city, Class of '15, and a member of the Cornelian Literary Society. It is remarkably well written, contains much of real interest from a historical standpoint, and is herewith reproduced from the State Normal Magazine:

Until the year 1725 there were no permanent settlements along the lower Cape Fear river. It was at this time that Col. Maurice Moore bought a large tract of land, about 12 miles above the mouth of the river, and laid off the town of Brunswick, which soon became a thriving place.

But it was not long before the little town had a formidable rival in a new town, which was afterwards called Wilmington, farther up the river at a more favorable location.

Among the early settlers of Brunswick was a man named Cornelius Harnett, who had formerly been living in Chowan county. In June, 1726, Harnett bought two lots from Col. Moore on condition that within eight months he build "good habitable houses" on them. Thus it came about that the father of the future leader of the Cape Fear section became a resident of the place of his son's future greatness.

On April 20th, 1723, the younger Cornelius Harnett was born in Chowan county. He was only three years old when his parents moved to Brunswick to live, and he therefore had the good fortune of growing up with the people with whom he was to be so closely identified. He grew up with the community and entered into leadership at the time when the Cape Fear section took the position in the State that had heretofore been held by the Albemarle section.

As the town of Wilmington flourished, the settlement of Brunswick, farther down the river, began to decline, and we are told that the younger Cornelius Harnett, with whom we are chiefly concerned, soon moved there to live.

On April 7th, 1741, Harnett was appointed by Gov. Johnston justice of the peace for New Hanover county. This was his first public service and it showed his remarkable ability to such an extent that in August he was made a Commissioner of Wilmington. Discontinously he served in this capacity for 11 years. Although these positions amounted to little in themselves in comparison with what he was to do later; yet it was in the faithful performance of these official duties that the people saw the possibilities of the man.

In 1754 Harnett was elected a member of the Colonial Assembly, and in all the remaining 12 Assemblies under Royal Governors, he continued in this position. During all this time he was the champion of the people in resisting the unjust demands of the Governors. He was thoroughly imbued with the spirit, customs, feelings, and virtues of the people he was working for. Connor says, "to write an account of his services during these years would be to write the history of the Assembly for that decade. He was one of the leaders of the leaders." This work was excellent training, for Harnett was more ably prepared to lead in resisting the unjust laws brought in later with Tryon and the Stamp Act.

There was "nothing dramatic about Harnett's career, no eloquence as Hooper's, no military genius as Caswell's but his ability, wealth and geniality made him a leader." Dr. C. Alphonso Smith says, "he was the mightiest single force in the Revolution in North Carolina."

Before the passage of the Stamp Act in England, the Colonial Assembly appointed a committee, of which Harnett was a member, to join with the other colonies in resisting injustice. Therefore, when the first Assembly under Governor Tryon met on May 3rd, 1763, and the Governor asked Speaker Ashe how the State would receive the Stamp Act, he was answered by the words, "We will resist it to the death." The Governor promptly prorogued the Assembly so that no action could be taken.

In spite of this and the terribly hot Summer that followed, marked by sickness and failure of crops, the people of the Cape Fear section made a stubborn fight against the enforcement of the Stamp Act. Lord Bute was burned in effigy and there were celebrations over an effigy of Liberty. William Houston, the stamp agent, was forced to resign and Andrew Steward, the editor of The Gazette, was made to promise that he would print his paper without stamps on it. Amid the cheers of the crowd all officials were forced to take an oath, promising not to enforce the hated act. The crew of the Viper were forbidden to land, and no provisions were given them, because they seized two small vessels which left the harbor without stamps on their clearance papers. In all this resistance Harnett was the central figure. He was leader and spokesman of the expedition to Governor Tryon's home, to force the resignation of Pennington, an officer of the King, who had fled to the Governor for protection.

This resistance was so effective that when the sloop of war, Diligence, arrived at Brunswick with stamps, none were taken off. No one else can justly claim the credit due to Cornelius Harnett for his great work in completely defeating the Stamp Act. It has been said that the germ of union was born in the contest.

The first step in the union of the colonies was the organization of the people into the Non-importation Association, which agreed to strive to manufacture the necessary articles at home and not to pay the exorbitant prices on England's imported goods. Under Harnett's leadership the people of the Cape Fear section, who were the greatest importers of the colony, determined to enforce the laws of the association.

When the trouble with the Regulators began, Harnett was in thorough sympathy with them, and advocated measures of relief in the Assembly. But as the Regulators became so violent and lawless, Harnett, realizing that the authorities in England made, and could see no difference between uprising of the Regulators and the widespread spirit of independence over the colonies, did all in his power to put down this civil strife when union was most needed.

After Tryon's administration and the repeal of the Stamp Act, Josiah Martin became Governor of North Carolina. He came at a time when the province was disturbed with many questions. Chief among these questions were the court law, the boundary line, and the debt with the Regulators. There were many hot discussions over these questions between the Governor and the people.

This breach between the Governor and the Assembly made it necessary for the leaders of the colony to devise some plan for united action between the colonies. By this time Harnett, through his untiring services, had won the confidence and respect of the people.

In March, 1773, Josiah Quincy, of Massachusetts, came on a visit to the Cape Fear section. He spent his time here in discussing the affairs of the colonies with Harnett, whom he called "the Samuel Adams of North Carolina." They discussed the plan of a committee of correspondence between the colonies, that had been in operation in Virginia and Massachusetts. This plan was adopted at the next Assembly and Cornelius Harnett was a member of the committee appointed. This was the first time the colonies had any bond of union other than their mutual allegiance to England. Harnett was the spirit of the committee.

When there were rumors of a Continental Congress, Martin promptly prorogued the Assembly so that delegates could not be elected. But Harvey, with the help of Harnett and others, urged a meeting of the people. On July 21st, Harnett was the chief one in bringing the inhabitants of Wilmington district together at Wilmington, where a circular letters was written and sent throughout the State calling a meeting at Johnston Court House, August 20th, to elect delegates for Philadelphia. The place was afterwards changed to New Bern and the time to the 25th. At this convention the counties and large towns were authorized to organize committees of safety as there was no executive power and no courts in the State.

The Wilmington and New Hanover committees were the best organized and the most active in the State. Connor says of these committees, "Cornelius Harnett was the master spirit, the genius, the soul. Their work was his work." He was unanimously elected chairman of the joint committee of Wilmington and New Hanover. "His work here won for him, after the provincial committee was established, not only a place on that committee, but the chairmanship of it, a place that made him the chief executive of the new-born State."

The Governor now no longer had any control over the affairs of government; so in May, 1775, he fled from his palace to Fort Johnston, at the mouth of the Cape Fear, where he began at once to stir up trouble among the negroes and Indians. In a letter to Lord Dartmouth, Martin proscribes Harnett, Howe, Ashe and Nash as the "foremost patrons of revolt," thus paying them the highest possible tribute.

While the stirring news of Lexington spread and one event followed another in rapid succession, the second Continental Congress met in Philadelphia. John Harvey, the former Speaker of the Provincial Congress, was dead and Cornelius Harnett was joined by Howe and John Ashe in a letter to Samuel Johnston asking him to call a meeting. This third Provincial Congress met at Hillsboro and Harnett's share in its work was most important. The Congress revised the plan of government, forming a provincial council of 13 men to be at the head of district, county, and town committees. Hooper, Hewes and Caswell were elected to the Continental Congress. The success of the new executive department of provincial council depended on the men put in office. The head office of this responsible position was unanimously given to Harnett. Thus he became virtually the first executive of North Carolina.

Under the direction of the council, troops were sent to Moore's Creek. The victory at Moore's Creek put a new aspect on things; there was no longer any hope of reconciliation.

At every Provincial Congress, except the fifth, Harnett was present, and served on almost every important committee. When the provincial council was given more power and its name changed to the Council of Safety, Harnett was still its chief executive.

When the fourth Provincial Congress met in April, 1776 Harnett was appointed chairman of a committee to draw up a draft expressing the feeling of the colony toward England's injustice. This report was made on April 8th, and unanimously adopted. It authorized the continental delegates to concur with the delegates of the other provinces in declaring independence. "To those who made it it means long years of suffering, to us it means glory."

After the adoption of the draft, the constitution was discussed, but it was postponed till an extra session of the Assembly. On August 1, 1776, Cornelius Harnett had the honor of proclaiming to the people at Halifax the Declaration of Independence adopted at the Continental Congress July 4th, 1776.

Soon after this Congress at Halifax, Harnet was elected a Continentl Congressman. For years during the trying times of the Revolution, he served in the Continental Congress, where he was highly esteemed by all who knew him.

In February, 1780, Harnett made his last trip from Philadelphia to his home. His work had been such a strain on him, and he was in such a weakened condition of health that he realized he did not have long to live. During this last year of his life, he had to suffer the indignity of being imprisoned by the British. The cruel treatment he received hastened his death, which came in April, 1781.

Harnett's beautiful old home till recently stood in a big live oak grove on the eastern banks of the Cape Fear river, just on the edge of Wilmington.

The work Harnett did for independence was recognized by the British to be so great that he and Howe were the only ones excepted from the general pardon offered to the colonists by England. Mr. George Davis calls him "The Pride of the Cape Fear, the life-breathing spirit among the people." Richard Frothingham says, "Harnett was the foremost actor in the Movement for Independence."

FOUND SILENCE TERRIBLE

Two Women Have Themselves Locked Up Four Days at Auburn to Study Prison—"Cooler" Dreadful.

New York, Nov. 22.—"There are many things that we want to look into thoroughly, now that we are out of prison, and one of them is the history of a 25-year-old woman who is in Auburn prison serving a term of rrom 10 to 19 years for the theft of $19—her first offense of the kind."

So said Miss Madeleine Zabriskie Doty, lawyer and member of the New York State Commission for Prison Reform, when questioned about her experiences behind bars.

Miss Doty and her companion, Miss Elizabeth C. Watson, investigator, have just returned from Auburn, after having secretly entered the woman's prison as "convicts" to study the system. They were there four days.

"This young woman came from Brooklyn, and her theft, we understood, was her first offense, though she had been guilty once of approaching men on the streets. Her case is only one detail of the things that we got an inkling of and want to look into more thoroughly before we make our recommendations.

Little Coffee; Lots of Water.

"They serve coffee up there that is made at the rate of half a pound of coffee to four pails of water. That is one tablespoonful of ground coffee to 30 persons. You can imagine the color of it, or lack of color. They never give the prisoners sugar or milk in the coffee—and the lady in the kitchen said there had never been any complaint!

"There are three big kettles in the kitchen in which everything is cooked. They hold about 35 gallons apiece, and in one of these the breakfast stew is made. For breakfast meat stew, bread and coffee are served.

"The head matron said that 320 pounds of meat a week are used, and from this are taken the steaks and roasts for the matrons. What is left of the meat and bones is served to the prisoners during the week and always cooked as stew. There are 111 prisoners, and we have guessed that it averages less than a pound to every prisoner after the bones are subtracted.

"The second meal is served a short time before noon, and consists of the same kind of stew, bread and pickles. We had pickles every day but why I don't know.

"The Sunday dinner used to be thrust into the cells, but since Thomas Mott Osborne became a voluntary prisoner in the men's prison the order has gone forth that the women shall eat at the tables on Sunday and be allowed to talk for half an hour.

Had Feeling Of Terror

"The terror that takes possession of one who has served in this prison is still so dominant over my friend and me that subconsciously we feel afraid.

"The awful thing about being a prisoner is the trapped feeling that comes over one, the utter helplessness. Then the silence is simply dehumanizing.

"The prison was once an insane asylum and the walls are very thick and heavy and oppressive. It was the absolute silence, the inability to feel like human beings.

"Take a new girl. She can't see her friends for two months, and then only relatives. But she can't touch them even then. If she is married she can't kiss her husband or her mother or children when they come to see her. When she sees them she can talk, but only in the presence of a matron. In the men's prison they see their friends in a wire cage affair, to be sure, but alone.

"There was a woman there whose child was in an institution. She had heard that some one was going to take the child out. She was afraid and helpless. She asked that we do something about the child when we got out. One woman had lived for years with a common law husband and because she had not been legally married she could not see her own children or write to them. Such treatment makes them vicious and morose, does not reform them.

Censorship on the Newspapers.

"Girls who have newspapers sent directly from the publisher, so there can be no drugs or communications in them, get them, but even those papers are censored. For instance, all the news about Mr. Sulzer was expurgated. We were told that the matron didn't want the girls to know that their Chief Executive was what he was.

"The girls get a cent and a half a day for their work at making mattresses, etc., but if they get into trouble their pay is eaten up in fines, and they get into debt also sometimes. One woman was fined $7.50, and it takes a good many days to pay such a fine. Sometimes, in addition to being sent to the cooler, you are fined.

"We were in constant dread of the 'cooler.' It is the basement of the prison. You are conducted down the stairs past the morgue, which is pointed out to you as the place where persons who die are put. Then great doors open, and you pass along a whitewashed narrow passage. Then more doors and then the 'cooler'—double barred cells with no windows, no chairs, and only a sack of straw on the floor to sleep on.

"The only light is from a painted window in the corridor. You can't see to read. When you are sent there you are given old clothes that others have worn. We were told, but do not know for sure, that these clothes are not washed between the wearing by different prisoners.

Matron Keeps Prison Clean

"The prison is spotlessly clean, no vermin, but it is inadequately heated in winter. In our ward water freezes in the basin in winter, I was told, while the bed covering is too thin.

"Prisoners can get one book to read a week."

MOTHER TELLS

How Her Little Girl Was Restored to Health.

Mrs. Chas. Schriefer, of 139 Himrod St., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "My little girl was frail, sickly and all run down after having had the grippe. I was advised to give her Vinol and after the first bottle noticed an improvement. She has taken four bottles and has picked up rapidly, having gained six pounds in three weeks."

The reason Vinol builds up weak, ailing children so quickly is because it contains in a delicious combination the most world famed tonics—for instance, the strength-creating, body-building elements of cod liver oil, with all the useless grease eliminated, and tonic iron for the blood added. If you have a weak, puny, ailing child, try Vinol on our offer to refund your money if it fails to benefit your little one.—Robert R. Bellamy, druggist, Wilmington, N. C.

CROPS POOR IN ROBESON

Cotton Off Fully One Half—Taxable Values in County—Mr. Hamilton Promoted— Other News Notes of Interest.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Lumberton, N. C., November 22.—The writer does not belong to the "calamity howler" class; he believes in and tries to look on the bright side of everything as far as possible, making true statements or none. During the past week we have conversed with several leading business farmers of the county and the report which they all, without exception, give in regard to the cotton crop, is enough to take the appetite from any hungry man.

Mr. J. A. Boone, government farm demonstrator in Robeson, gives as his opinion, after traveling all parts of the county, that there has been made a little more than half a crop of cotton. Mr. L. R. Hamer, one of the largest farmers in the western part of the county, agrees with Mr. Boone. Another farmer says that he planted for 75 bales, the amount he usually grows, but if he gets over 35 bales he will be surprised and another who expected to gin 20 bales, can only gin 12. During the Summer when cotton was beginning to bloom, your correspondent went with Sheriff Lewis over his 175-acre cotton farm and the prespects then were good for a bale to the acre. Yesterday the sheriff stated that he did not expect now to get much, if any, over 100 bales. These are the kind of reports that are coming from all over the county. Mr. R. D. Caldwell, senior member of the firm of R. D. Caldwell & Son, says he began business for himself in January, 1884, and had been working for other merchants 15 years before he began for himself, but has never seen just such a season as this. Mr. Caldwell says he has traveled the country in all directions and that it is going to be close work to make the cotton crop average a half. He says that many of the best farmers in the county cannot pay for their fertilizers to say nothing of their other accounts. There is no complaint about the price, but there is great trouble in getting cotton picked and there being many fields now which have not been bothered at all. It seems impossible to secure pickers at any price though the farmers are doing all possible to gather the crop. These are the conditions facing the merchants and farmers of this county, as given by thoroughly reliable gentlemen, and it is a well known fact that whatever affects the farmers affects the whole country.

From the county auditor's office the following interesting figures which will be included in the auditor's report to the Corporation Commission are obtained: The county has 549,914 acres of land valued at $5,049,274; total value of real estate including town lots, $7,031,718. The number of polls is put down as 7,307 or 312 more than last year. The total value of personal property is $3,505,956, showing an increase of $550,000 over last year. Value of real and personal property in the county, of all kinds, $17,228,704.

After spending several days here a recruiting officer from the Army left this week for Raleigh. While here the officer secured three white and four colored young men who left for the final examinations which the community hopes they will successfully pass. The seven volunteers hope to go to Mexico and their acquaintances here hope for the same thing.

Mr. S. H. Hamilton, for over 10 years the efficient and clever manager of the Western Union office of this place, has been notified that on December 1st, he will be made manager of the telephone as well as the telegraph office with an increase in salary. This is recognition of faithful service in the correct way.

It is stated here that the new train on the Seaboard between Wilmington and Hamlet will make its first trip on Monday, December 1st. If that be the case a number of Lumberton people including The Star representative expect to enjoy an oyster roast on the Sound, Sunday, December 7th, returning home the same evening.

The concert given at the opera house Thursday night by local talent for the benefit of the organ fund of the Episcopal church, was well attended and greatly enjoyed, many declaring it the best amateur performance ever given in Lumberton.

Indications are there will be plenty of turkeys on the market Thanks giving. One man has brought in two loads this week which he sold at his own price and says he has many more to bring.

Mr. H. B. McPhaul, who has been taking a special course in pharmacy at Chapel Hill, is spending some time in town at the home of his brother, Dr. W. A. McPhaul. He has recently stood successfully the State Board examination both in North Carolina and Alabama.

A new business house is expected to be erected in a short time on Seventh street, between the Gospel Tabernacle and Jewish Synagogue. The building will be owned and occupied by an old established business. This is partly the result of the expectation of the new postoffice at Seventh and Elm streets.

Chief Redfern is making much trouble for the colored population who are accused of accommodating their white friends with booze. All the officers in the universe could not eradicate the evil while white people will encourage them and violate the law themselves by ordering larger quantities than the law prescribes. While prominent white people violate the law the negro may be expected to do likewise.

Lumberton is to have a new garage and machine shop—the Pedneau Garage and Iron Works Co. The plant will be located on Second and Elm streets. The incorporators will be A. A. Pedneau, H. H. Anderson, and others. Mr. Pedneau has been manager of the Lumberton Motor Car Co., the past two or three years. He severed his connection with the old company tonight to assume charge of the new garage. Mr. A. I. Tinkham, who has been connected with the old company since its organization, will succeed Mr. Pedneau as manager.

The "Shepherd of the Hills" will be the attraction at the opera house Monday night and it is expected will be greeted by a large audience. The show comes highly recommended. After Monday night the theatre will be dark for three weeks.

Mrs. Dan Shaw and children, of Laurinburg, are spending some time here with Mrs. Shaw's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. M. Whitfield.

For some reason The Star failed to show up this morning. As many readers enjoy it "before breakfast," there were several cases of no appetite.

Early this morning your correspondent saw Chief Redfern showing a negro the way to jail, charged with selling booze.

L. S. Sidener, of Philadelphia, is riding his motorcycle to Los Angeles.

HOW TO OBSERVE THANKSGIVING

When the world was younger and times were harder, people had better appreciation of the good things that came to them. Progress, modern invention, and better enlightenment along certain lines have increased the number of bright days and shortened those of suffering, but good times in the old days were not taken so much as a matter of fact and people at certain times made it a practice to render thanks for the good things that came their way. Then it was no mere perfunctory observance. Thanksgiving was a term that had real significance.

The day is almost here which the almanac tells us is the time for observance of the annual proclamation calling for a day of thanksgiving. As is usual, certain games, certain annual hunting parties, and certain other plans for pleasure, not to omit the hapless turkey have been long looked forward to in keen anticipation by tens of thousands of us in connection with that date, but how many will remember the real significance of the institution of thanksgiving? How many of us have preserved the original spirit that prompts the observance and how many of us are preparing to make real expression of thanks on Thanksgiving day?

The usual pleasures are natural results of a year of prosperity, but that is not all. Every man who has prospered and is conscientious in his intentions to properly observe the occasion can't well do so without expression of sympathy for the unfortunate and the numberless needy. These classes are found under many circumstances and, this year of all years, when prosperity has been almost rampant, they ought to receive a much increased material support.

The orphanages of the state, these institutions that exist for the sole object of fathering the homeless children, that fit them for the higher duties of life, ought to find as tender spots in the hearts of the prosperous public as any cause. It is good to contemplate how many children are sent out in life from them well equipped to meet the exigences, but it is sad to contemplate how many of them might have been derelicts if they had not been well cared for and sheltered in their more tender years.

No cause is more appealing and it is to be hoped that more people will mingle a little of the spirit of giving with the spirit of thanksgiving and make Thanksgiving worthy of its name.

COLUMBUS COURT ADJOURNS.

Important Case of Manning vs. Railroad Not Tried Yet.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Whiteville, N. C., Nov. 22.—Superior Court adjourned Friday afternoon for the week, and Judge Rountree returned to his home in Wilmington on the late train last night. With the exception of the Fergus damage suit, which consumed the first three days of the court, no important cases have been tried.

The remaining case of noteworthy importance is that of Manning vs. Railroad, and is brought against the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad Company to recover damages for alleged almost inhumane treatment at the hands of the conductor in charge of the train on which young Manning, the plaintiff, was riding. The complaint alleges that after the plaintiff, a boy yet in his teens, had handed his ticket to the conductor, he was approached by the conductor a second time and asked to pay his fare. He tried to explain by offering eye witnesses to the affair, but the conductor, despite this fact, called him from his seat to the rear of the train while it was running at a speed of from 15 to 20 miles an hour, demanded his fare and when refused it by the boy, deliberately pushed him from the platform to the ground, resulting in internal injuries to the boy which in all probability he will never recover from. He sues for $15,000 actual and $10,000 punitive damages, and is represented by Messrs. Lewis & Lyon.

WILSON WAS DOUBLE WINNER.

Gets Next Meeting and Presidency of Drainage Association.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Wilson, N. C., Nov. 22.—Lawrence Brett, president of the Wilson chamber of commerce, and T. W. Chambliss, chairman of the committee on public meetings, have returned from Charlotte, where they were in attendance on the meeting of the State Drainage Association. The next session was secured for Wilson. Mr. Brett was elected first president of the association.

The abandonment of the city market is being agitated. It appears that the city has lost $3,185.11 in the market during the past six years and in addition the entire sale of meats in the town is confined to two firms, there being room in the market for only two establishments.

In the Superior court Mrs. D. K. Peele was awarded $1,000 damages alleged to have been suffered while alighting from an Atlantic Coast Line Railway train.

The people of North Carolina may rest easy in the assurance that the special commission named by Governor Craig Monday afternoon will go to the bottom of the freight rate matter and act for the best interests of the people and the railroads. Judge M. H. Justice, President W. L. Poteat and Mr. A. A. Thompson are three men on whom dependence may be placed. They are not politicians, and Governor Craig in naming them scored heavily. Three men better qualified for the position could not have been found in the State. The Governor might easily have named three wild men, instead of these good citizens, but he did not do it. He selected men of known ability, unimpeachable character and the strictest integrity. They will not play the game for political position, but they will endeavor earnestly to serve their State. In naming these men for the position Governor Craig again demonstrated that he is a wise and safe leader.—Raleigh Times.

Earl Best, of Snow Hill, Kan., spent his month's vacation touring in Colorado on a motorcycle. He traveled 1,500 miles without a mishap.

George Murphy and Shorty Agnew of Chippewa Falls, Wis., have just completed a motorcycle trip to Detroit.

Here Is Where The Draft Enters

The most perfect draft ever discovered is the patent Hot Blast Down Draft of the Wilson Heater. The only draft that secures perfect combustion and prevents waste.

This draft is found only in the

Wilson HOT BLAST Heater

The air enters at the top, drives the combustible gases into the fire where they are burned—prevents the escape of heat up the chimney—doubles the heating power of the fuel.

In other words, only half the amount of fuel used in ordinary heaters is necessary. The Wilson is air-tight, making perfect combustion possible and a fire can be held 36 hours.

We sell Wilson Hot Blast Heaters for either wood or coal.

PRODUCTIVITY OF THE SOIL

Less Than 12 Per cent of Soil is Yielding Maximum Returns, Says Commissioner of Agriculture Houston.

(By Associated Press.)

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 22.—Less than 40 per cent of the cultivated land in the United States is reasonably well cultivated and less than 12 per cent is yielding maximum returns.

Secretary Houston, of the Department of Agriculture, told the National Grange of Patrons of Husbandry in 47th annual convention here last week that the best figures he could procure led to such a conclusion and that only in a very few localities had conditions been developed to insure maximum returns.

Secretary Houston touched upon rural credits, marketing methods, extension of agricultural education, and the cost of living. He spoke of "manipulations of those middlemen who perform no useful or necessary service," as one of the causes of soaring prices.

"I do not entertain the thought for a second that we have approximated the limit of our output from the soil," said he. "We have not even reached the end of the pioneering stage. We have been so bent on building up great industrial centers by every natural and artificial device that we have had little time to think of the very foundation of our industrial existence.

"We had better frankly face the fact that we are relatively inefficient, take stock of our shortcomings and earnestly seek the remedy. That we have practically reached the stage where we have ceased to be an exporting nation of food products and are becoming dependent on foreign nations for the necessaries of life, is a sad commentary upon our use of the opportunities bestowed upon us."

Speaking of what the Agricultural Department hopes to do to solve the problem of the increasing cost of living, Secretary Houston expressed the opinion that "the existing chaos and consequent wastes, result from faults on the part of the farmer in the growing and handling of his products; from the machinery of distribution including physical equipment and physical handling; from the manipulation of those middlemen who perform no useful and necessary service; and from ignorance on the part of the consumer and of the producer of the character of the product which is placed upon the market."

Secretary Houston urged co-ordination of Federal and State agricultural agencies as essential to success, deplored the jealously which, he declared, exists in many States between State agricultural commissions and the agricultural colleges, and decried duplication of work in many localities.

In the field of marketing, he declared, there was danger that pressure would be brought to bear to force the department to act everywhere before it was intelligently prepared to act anywhere. He explained that his department which started last Summer to make a careful study of the marketing problem was studying it from every angle.

There was the same danger in regard to the question of rural credits. "I am not impressed," he said, "with the wisdom and justice of proposals that would take the money of all the people through bonds or other devices and lend it to the farmers or to any other class at a rate of interest lower than the economic conditions would normally require and at a rate of interest lower than that at which other classes are securing their capital. This would be legislation of a particularly odious type, and no new excursions in this direction would be palatable when we are engaged in the gigantic task of restoring the simple rule of equity."

Before the problems of rural credit and marketing the Secretary declared the individual farmer acting alone was helpless. Nothing less than concerted action would suffice, he said, and the "same business sense and the same organizing genius which have placed this nation in the front rank of industry must be involved in agriculture."

The problem of the individual farmer, said the Secretary, had received scant systematic attention and the problem of rural life as a whole had until recently been practically ignored. From every section of the country, he declared, came the story of "increasing tenancy and absentee ownership of soils depleted and exploited, of inadequate business methods, of chaotic marketing and distribution, of inferior roads, of lack of supervision of public health and sanitation, of isolated and ill organized social activities and of inferior intellectual provision." He added, however, that he was not of the pessimists and expressed his belief that out of the chaos would come order, better and bigger crops, improved living conditions in the country and relief to the city dweller through greater productivity of the soil and a businesslike overhauling of marketing methods.

Speaking of the need of better educational opportunities in the country, Secretary Houston declared that if more enlightened attention were devoted to the conservation and development of the people "we shall be relieved of much of the concern about the conservation and development of our natural resources."

The approach to the problem of the organization of rural life, he declared, was clearly economic. The great need, he said, was to give the rural population, at least, approximately the primary advantages which the town enjoys.

GOSSIP OF FOREIGN CAPITALS

Canada. This threat has been hanging over the postoffice service for a long while now, but it is only just taking practical form.

Last year Mr. Samuel appointed a committee to consider the complaints of the postoffice workers, but the report did not satisfy the employees, either in its recommendations as to conditions or wages.

Conferences and meetings have been held without result and now the Postmen's Federation, which represents all the postal trade unions, has sent a letter to Mr. Samuel, pointing out the possibility of a strike, and asking him to receive a deputation to discuss the whole subject of the committee report. On the result of that interview will be decided future action by the Federation.

There are fifteen chief unions of postal workers, with a membership of 97,200. Should they decide upon a strike not only the postal service, but the telephone and telegraph systems of the country would be affected, as all are under government control.

Eugenics in Denmark

Copenhagen, Nov.,22.—Eugenics has been taken up as a study by a Government Commission composed of prominent jurists representing Denmark, Norway and Sweden with the object of introducing a mutual law regulating marriages and family rights. The Scandinavian countries are thus following the example of several American States in taking up the question of restricting the marriages of those who are physically or morally defective.

The commission, however, has not gone so far as was desired by the Danish, namely, demanding that people intending to marry in all cases should give certificates to the effect that they were not suffering from any disease of such a kind that marriage ought not to be entered into.

Sweden would not go so far, its representatives claiming that this would be too great a personal and economical demand to make; and it was argued that it would tend to increase the already existing reluctance to enter into matrimony.

The commission thereupon agreed to demand that all insane and mentally defective persons, as well as those suffering from certain sexual diseases and epilepsy may not marry unless the other party has been notified of the condition existing.

Prohibition in Iceland

The law prohibiting the importation of intoxicating liquors into Iceland which has been in effect since January 1, 1912, has been so strictly applied that not a drop of alcohol has been brought into the country since then unless by smugglers and none has been produced there.

The law permits the selling of liquors already in stock until January 1, 1915, but on that date no more sales of strong drink will be allowed.

The price of the spirits still on sale has increased enormously and it is not now possible to obtain drinkable beer.

The total abstinence movement has made great strides in the island, in every district of which are lodges consisting of hundreds of members.

In most cases hotels do not possess licenses for the sale of alcohol and in Reykjavik, the capital, strong drink can be bought only in one hotel.

There are still many opponents of prohibition and these work energetically against the application of the law arguing that it means the restriction of personal liberty and that the treasury cannot dispense with the revenue on spirits. The Prohibitonists hope to be able to bring about some modifications of the law.

Tariff Provision

Paris, Nov. 22.—A storm of indignation has been raised by the demand, under Paragraph U of the new tariff bill, that treasury agents of the United States be allowed to examine the books of French importers. Thus far the Foreign Office has refused to the United States this privilege. Other objections to the new American tariff seem susceptible of adjustment, but it is said that on this point the French Government will not yield.

The French trade journals declare that the demand is an insult. It assumes, they say, that the French exporters are committing frauds. That a foreign government should ask for its representatives the right to enter French business houses and demand to see the books, assuming that the firm has committed perjury in declaring invoices before an American consular officer is abhorrent to French ideas.

In this connection the French press recalls the Limoges affair of 1911. At that time the United States Treasury Department sent three agents to inquire into the cost of producing porcelains. The American Commission was properly introduced to the French Minister of Commerce, at whose requests the Limoges manufacturers opened their books to the investigators. Afterward the Foreign Office complained to the United States Government that the treasury agents had violated the agreement that the information thus obtained was to be held in strict confidence.

Should a tariff war result from this situation, it is pointed out that the French people would be the losers. Three-quarters of the imports from America are raw materials, cotton, copper, petroleum, tobacco and hides, which France must have while the exports to America are almost altogether articles of taste and luxury which the Americans may do without or for which they can obtain substitutes from other European countries.

A Greater Paris

M. Delanney, Prefect of the Seine, has submitted to the Paris Municipal Council a scheme for the creation of a "Greater Paris." The magnitude of M. Delanney's proposal may be judged from the fact that Paris as he has planned it will be more than six times as large as the present city. The scheme includes a number of novelties notably that no house should be higher than the breath of the street in front, or the courtyard behind it. The plan provides for the widening of 225 miles of existing roads and the creation of fifty miles of new ones. The new Paris will extend some four miles in all directions beyond its present boundaries. The present ring of fortifications, which encircles the city, is to be demolished and the greater part of the land thus vacated turned into public gardens. In addition to these it is proposed to create two immense new parks on the north and south sides of Paris, totalling some 640 acres. A number of plots of land in the centre of Paris belonging to the state also would be cleared of buildings and turned into public gardens. Paris is at present the worst provided of all great cities in respect to parks and open places and is the most overcrowded of modern capitals. It is inhabited by 148 persons to the acre, compared with only 64 in London.

Socialism syndicalism and strikes directly effect the national birth rate, according to M. Jacques Bertilon. Before the Academy of Moral and Political Sciences, M. Bertillon held that the state of the birth rate in numerous districts of France is almost the inverse ration of the prevalence of socialist beliefs in these districts.

One of the most striking instances which M. Bertillon cited was the case of the mining town of Monteau-les-Mines in the north of France. Up to the year 1900 the birth rate at Monceau stood at 35 births per thousand innabititants. Within three years afterwards, during which a strong Socialist movement made its appearance in the community, the number of births had fallen to 21 per thousand. It has continued to fall steadily ever since and now stands at only 14.

M. Bertillon notes, however, in conclusion that socialism has not the same effect in certain other countries and ascribes its peculiar effect in France to the manner in which it has taken root in French soil.

Material Inadequate

M. Pablo Picasso, the eminent Post-Impressionist painter, who resides in the South of France, has now arrived at a point where the ordinary artist's material has become inadequate as a medium for expressing his aesthetic emotions. The last work of art which he sent to the Paris dealer who has a first claim on all the great cubist's productions was a board on to which he had stuck a newspaper clipping, two buttons and a piece of red glass. The dealer apparently did not appreciate the mysterious rhythm of M. Picasso's latest achievement, and — much to the artist's indignation—returned his work to him.

Paris Wedding Gifts

An interesting custom has been introduced at some of the more recent Parisian society weddings. Gifts of too bulky a nature to be displayed on the tables at the reception, are represented among the other presents by reproductions in miniature. Thus, at a prominent wedding the other day, a tiny automobile, a model of a country villa to scale and a delicate model of a grand piano were set out with the names of the givers attached to them, to bear witness to the orginal presents, which could not be shown.

Tips to Waiters.

A painstaking statistician has estimated that tips of one kind and another paid daily in Paris to waiters, janitors, cabmen and the thousand and one others whose income is largely derived from this source, amount to $41,600, or nearly two cents per head of population. In the province, however, it is calculated that this expenditure amounts to only about half a cent per person per day. The grand total of all the tips given in France is placed at $64,420,000 a year.

Tango in France

The tango is causing some discussion in official circles in France. The winter season is at hand and no pronouncement has been made thus far about the admissability of the Tango at official and diplomatic functions. Considerable pressure has been brought to bear in official quarters at the Elysee, the Senate, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and at various Embassies by enthusiastic tangoists, but so far the only response has been "we shall see," M. Poincare alone is said to have replied to one of his friends, "Of course we'll dance the Tango."

WANTS GAS PLANT NOW.

Wilson May Turn to Private Corporation Ownership.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Wilson, N. C., Nov. 22.—Wilson people are anxiously awaiting the next step taken by the board of city commissioners in the matter of a gas plant. After several months of investigation and consideration, the board of public works in a report to the commissioners urges that the franchise for a plant be given to a private corporation rather than a municipal plant be built. In the report, which is brief but clear, the board gives good reasons for their findings and reminds the commission of the almost universal demand being made by the people for a plant now. In addition to their report, the board of public works has also transmitted to the city commissioners a proposition from a private corporation for a franchise.

CROSSING THE JORDAN

(The Story)

England, behind her bulwark of the sea, could not be more complacent than the Canaanites, so long as their natural barrier stood between them and the Hebrew hosts. This river, aptly called the Descender, was running bank full, a mile wide, and in a depression two hundred feet deep. Jeremiah afterward took this torrent as a last test of fortitude, saying, "What wilt thou do in the swelling of Jordan?" * * * True, Joshua's spies had reported the widespread trepidation among the Canaanites, aptly expressed by Rahab in the words, "Our hearts did melt;" but when they saw these mighty legions going into camp where the river was running widest, the natural inference was that they intended to tarry there until the flood subsided. So they anticipated a considerable postponement of the invasion. * * * What must have been the consternation of the native scouts as, from acacia jungle, they saw their enemies breaking camp! The tent-stakes are drawn, the goodly curtains of the Lord's tabernacle are folded up, and the tribes assume their relative marching positions. But they face not to the north, as if they intended to make the circuit of the headwaters of the river; nor to the south, as if their purpose was to march around the Dead Sea,—they front squarely toward Jordan itself. * * * And now a people schooled to marvels witness one of the most stupendous miracles of their whole history. A finishing stroke is given to the small courage remaining in the heart of their enemy. * * * The ark of the covenant of God, not wrapped in its curtains, as usual, but uncovered, and its golden surface glittering in the sunlight—not carried by common Levites, as was wont, but by the holier hands of priests—is borne, not in the center of the hosts, as ordinarily, but a thousand yards in advance, and so in fullest view of every eye. Under the spreading wings of the cherubim, with their golden feathers, God's people are safe from flood and foe alike. * * When the feet of the priests, bearing aloft the palladium of Israel, dipped into that brimming torrent, the floods stood still. Jordan between Israel and the Canaanites availed the latter nothing. But the ark between Israel and Jordan was the safeguard of the former. The floods of great waters could not come nigh. * * * A river with an average fall of sixty feet to the mile, surpassed in this respect by only one other river in the world, would quickly empty its channel. * * * On that sparkling beach stood the priests, firm-footed, holding aloft the ark against the wall of water. * * *And now that never-to-be-forgotten march through God's viaduct began. Tribe after tribe—the Lion-tribe Judah in the van—women and children, flocks and herds, and all the impedimenta of the camp, came safely to the goodly land, whose possession the sons of Abraham had anticipated for four hundred years. * * * Moses' and Miriam's voices were hushed in death; but their psalms, sung on the hither side of the Red Sea, lived in the people's memory. If there was no inspired psalmist to celebrate with a new song the dividing of Jordan, they could at least adapt the old paean to this new occasion. * * * And no doubt there was some Miriam, timbrel in hand, to lead, antiphonally, and with high grace-notes, the woman chorus.

The Teacher's Lantern

Jordan is a phenomenal river. From a physical-geographic standpoint, it is fascinating—snow-fed, in a freshet when other streams are lowest; reaching the incredible depth of 1,300 feet below the level of the Mediterranean; finding a grave for itself at length in the Sea of Death; its thicket-covered banks forming a prolonged zoological garden and aviary. * * * From the standpoint of sacred history, the river is vastly more interesting. Here Naaman laved. These waters were cleft by Elijah's mantle in Elisha's hands. It was Jesus' baptismal laver. * * * One object of this conspicuous miracle was the authentication of Joshua as the divinely-chosen commandant of Israel's hosts. Moses was sadly missed. There may have been competitors for the vacant office. But "on that day the Lord magnified Joshua in the sight of all Israel." * * * This awe-inspiring miracle, which made a wide breach in the natural bulwark of Canaan, was of the nature of a last call to repentance of an adulterous race, whose cup was full. If at this eleventh hour of their national life, the Canaanites had repented, they need not have drank the wine of wrath. As it was, the spectacle filled them with cowardice, instead of contrition. * * * Israel could never say, "With mine own arm have I gotten me the victory," as long as he remembered the conspicuous manner in which God's hand opened the gate to Canaan. Pride was stopped. * * * By this sign Israel knew that "the living God was among" them. How impotent the idols of Canaan in contrast! Neither Baal nor Ashtoreth could make Jordan flow, if Jehovah made it stand still. * * * Events of importance are worthy of some memorial. Rear, then, your monuments of granite and bronze; but the loftiest of them will scarcely commemorate as important an event as that which Israel registered that day in the carn of twelve stones on the height of Gilgal. * * * Death is the last barrier between the Christian and his land of promise. The same hand that opened a path for Israel through Jordan will divide the cold and sullen stream of death.

Deuteronomy 8: 1-20

Our Church At Work For Our Country (Home Missions)

The ratio of growth of city population in comparison with rural is a surprising and fateful phenomenon. In 1880, seventeen per cent. of the whole population was in cities; 1890, twenty-two per cent; 1900, twenty-six per cent; 1910, thirty-two per cent. It is affirmed by the director of the census that in 1920 the per centum will be fifty, plus. There was a time when the cities could look to the rural vote to help control their lawless elements. After 1920 that appeal will be in vain. The cities can then outvote the country. Fate of the Nation is at stake in the evangelization of the city. Support of city missions is, therefore, a patriotic as well as a religious obligation.

THE MENHADEN INDUSTRY.

Results of Canvass by the Bureau of Fisheries.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 22.—In view of the great importance of the menhaden industry and the popular interest which it has attracted in recent years, the Bureau of Fisheries, of the Department of Commerce, in 1913 undertook a very comprehensive statistical canvass, which has just been completed. A special bulletin giving the results of the canvass will shortly be issued and distributed to the trade.

It appears that the season of 1912 was one of the most successful in the entire history of this industry, which goes back for about half a century. Every factory on the coast from Maine to Florida has been visited and complete data has been obtained, showing the quantity of fish utilized, the quantity and value of the oil and fertilizer manufactured therefrom, together with the number of persons employed, the amount of money invested, and the number of vessels engaged in supplying menhad the factories.

The fishery and the industry dependent thereon are most extensive in Virginia, New York, North Carolina, Delaware and New Jersey, in the order named. About 150 vessels were employed throughout the season in catching menhaden for 48 factories. 5,900 persons made a livelihood in taking menhaden and in converting them into oil and guano; and nearly $8,000,000 was invested.

The enormous catch of 1,081,000,000 fish, equivalent to over 3,000,000 barrels, or over 300,000 tons, is credited to this fishery in 1912, with a first value of over $2,000,000. Of this quantity Virginia contributed nearly half. The manufactured products consisted of 6,650,000 gallons of oil and about 90,000 tons of fertilizer, valued at $3,700,000.

This investigation confirmed the previous experience of the Bureau of Fisheries in regard to the capture and utilization in this industry of other fishes than menhaden. While the purse seines used by the menhaden fishermen are capable of taking all kinds of free-swimming fishes, as a matter of fact, during the year 1912 the catch of food species was negligible. Considerable quantities of sea robins, skates, swellfish, and sharks were utilized, and in Chesapeake Bay herring and perch suitable for human food were purchased by the menhaden factories and converted into fertilizer. This the only abuse noted during the season, is a matter for correction, not through the menhaden industry, but through the local net fisheries at the head of Chesapeake Bay.

TAR HEEL HEALTH WORK.

By State Board of Health.

Anti-Toxin Prices.

A recent letter to the State Board of Health from a citizen of North Carolina states that she paid her druggist $15 for 10,000 units of diphtheria anti-toxin for her sick child. There is no longer any reason why anyone should pay such exorbitant prices. The State Laboratory of Hygiene long ago made a contract with a reliable manufacturer for the sale of the anti-toxin in this State at drug stores in the various localites at reasonable rates. One thousand units may be bought for fifty cents, three thousand for $1.95. Consequently the ten thousand units in this case should have been obtained for about $3.90 instead of $15.

Vital Statistics Law Effective.

Beginning November 15th the Statewide vital statistics law went into effect. This law would have gone into effect six weeks earlier had not delays occurred in getting out the necessary blank forms, etc. However, there will still be six weeks in this year in which the local registrars, doctors, nurses, undertakers, and others may get accustomed to the new law. After that North Carolina should have almost perfect registration which will entitle her to recogntion as a registration State along with about 23 other States in the union.

Anyone desiring to register births and deaths that may have occurred prior to the time the law went into effect may do so by presenting the facts in the case to the State Registrar.

Mental Hygiene Exhibit and Conference

Beginning November 26th there will be given for at least a week at the State Teachers' Convention in Raleigh the same Mental Hygiene Exhibit that was given at Washington a year ago. This is by all odds the best mental hygiene exhibit in the country. Besides this exhibit Dr. Albert Anderson, who has been instrumental in securing this valuable exhibit for North Carolina, has invited the State Board of Health to give their health exhibit which was given a few weeks ago at the State Fair.

Beginning November 28th, a four days' conference on Mental Hygiene will be held in connection with the exhibits. Some of the foremost men in the country will be there to lecture on various phases of mental hygiene. It will be a big treat for everyone that can arrange to come. The exhibits and lectures are free and the teachers and many people throughout the State are expected to be present.

The Common Towel.

This household infection spreader is abhorrent and repulsive to a person who has been used to an individual towel. It is difficult to understand how anyone can wipe his face on a soiled, damp towel that has been used by all the members of the household. But a custom is a great factor in molding habits and allaying prejudices, hence the necessity of pointing out at least one reason why the common towel is dangerous. There are many germs which attack the eye and cause an inflamed condition providing the eyes are in a favorable condition for the germ to develop at the time of its introduction. A germ which at one time will grow in the eye and cause inflammation will at another time be perfectly harmless. Germs which are harmless to oneself may be exceedingly poisonous to another person and cause dangerous inflammation of the eyes. For hygienic reasons the common towel should be abolished in every home.

Gov. Colquitt, of Texas, threw a dash of variety into the Mexican news last Monday when he announced that in the event Mexicans start any trouble Texans would protect their own citizens and not wait for Washington to act. While nothing official was given out, it was announced that the Texas National Guard was ready on short notice to answer any call that might be made.

Much of the credit for the promptness with which the returns in the Indianapolis (Ind.) city election were reported, is given to the Indianapolis Motorcycle club, whose members aided in bringing in reports from the different districts.

Curtailing the already restricted sale of intoxicants in Texas, two new enactments went into effect Monday midnight, one prohibiting State shipment of liquor into dry territory and preventing liquor dealers from soliciting business in option territory and another requiring saloons to close at 9:30 P. Good Cheer Aids Digestion of Food

Dyspeptics Can Make the Rest of the Family Happy by Using a Laxative-Tonic.

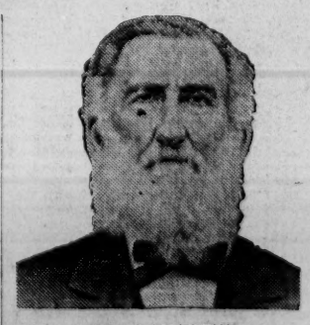
The temper of the family and the good cheer around the table depends so much on the good digestion of each individual present that the experiences of some former dyspeptics who overcame their trouble show be of interest to those now suffering in this way.

The best advice one can give—but it is advice that is seldom heeded—is to eat slowly and masticate each mouthful carefully. However, if slow eating and careful mastication fail the next aid is one close to nature, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This remedy is an excellent digestant and in addition to helping in the digestion of the food, acts gently on the liver and bowels, ridding them of the accumulation of waste that should long ago have been passed off. It is safe, reliable, pleasant-tasting, and results are guaranteed.

Maj. S. Martin, of Joplin, Mo., now 77, thinks Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has helped him to a longer and happier life. He has not felt so good in years as he has since taking this excellent medicine, and in spite of his 77 years he says he feels like a boy.

It is the ideal remedy for indigestion, no matter how severe; constipation, no matter how chronic, biliousness, headaches, gas on the stomach, drowsiness after eating and similar annoyances.

You can obtain Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar, the latter size being bought by heads of families already familiar with its merits. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.



MAJ. S. MARTIN.

When you use Syrup Pepsin you will see the fallacy of chewing mints and tablets or of taking cathartics, salts, pills and similar drastic medicines. Unlike these, Syrup Pepsin does not lose its good effect, and by automatically training the stomach and bowel muscles to do their work, soon restores these organs to normal.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 419 Washington St., Monticelo, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.
